LEAFLET CONTAINS TURKEY FACTS

Sixty-five per cent of the Oregon turkey crop is sold through independent dealers and 35 per cent through the four district cooperative associations. Seventy per cent of Oregon-grown turkeys are shipped to out-of-state markets.

This is part of a large fund of information pertaining to Oregon's 2½ to three million dollar turkey industry found in a leaflet entitled, "Let's Talk Turkey," prepared by J. R. Beck, extension specialist in rural service, using data supplied by Noel Bennion, extension poultryman. It is the latest of a series of leaflets on different phases of Oregon's agriculture which Mr. Beck has prepared as program material for use of all rural organizations and other interested groups.

As to the turkey situation this year, the leaflet shows that 7,989,000 pounds of turkeys were in cold storage in the United States on September 1 last year, while on the same date this year the pounds of turkeys in storage was 12,314,000. It is estimated that Oregon will market 700,000 pounds of turkeys this year, as compared with 800,000 pounds last year.

The pamphlet also shows that it takes an average of 75 pounds of feed to produce a turkey ready for market at 26 weeks of age, and that it requires from four to five pounds of feed to produce a pound of grain, from hatching to maturity. Early gains are the cheapest, it is pointed out.

Other feeding pointers indicate that feed costs can be reduced 10 to 20 per cent by using alfalfa, sunflowers, corn fields, etc., as pasture; that each bird needs six inches of hopper space, and that it is best not to give strong feeds, such as low-grade fish meal or inferior vitamin D fish-bearing oils, within the last six weeks before killing.

That breeding hens confined require eight feet of floor space, and that one tom is required for each 12 to 14 hens, are other facts brought out in the leaflet.

MEAT COOKERY DEMONSTRATION

Miss Emily Conklin, well known lecturer and economist, will bring to the homemakers of Umatilla county the latest and best methods of meat cookery, in a demonstration to be held in the library auditorium at Pendleton, November 8, at 1:30 p.m. This meeting is sponsored jointly by the National Live Stock and Meat Board and the Extension Service of Oregon State College, under direct supervision of Miss Frances Clinton, Home Demonstration Agent.

Miss Conklin is from Iowa State college and is a member of the staff of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, Chicago, the organization which represents all branches of the meat industry, and which initiated several years ago a study of the right way of preparing all kinds and cuts of meat. These studies were carried on in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the home economics departments of leading universities and colleges. The result of these experiments results in revolutionary changes in methods of cooking meat.

Old ways give place to new. The newer ways are easier and result in greater economy, and have a real dollars and cents value to the homemaker which she cannot afford to overlook.

Low Temperature is Used.

A fundamental change has to do with the temperature at which meat is cooked. A moderate or slow oven is recommended for roasting, for experiments showed that hot ovens resulted in greater shrinkage in the roast and hardening of the fibers. Longer cooking at a lower temperature results in tender, juicy roast.

Miss Conklin shows how meat should be placed in the oven so that there is no need for basting. She does not cover her roast, and she adds no water—both of which are surprising to those who still follow the "old school" of meat roasting. Even searing the meat is no longer recommended, since experiments show that searing did not keep in the juices, as it was supposed to do.

All of this has made the roasting of meat, a very simple matter—just place the meat in the oven, fat side up. Have an even, low temperature (300 degrees to 350 degrees F.) and you have nothing more to do until your clock tells you the cooking time is finished.

For further exactness Miss Conklin uses a roast-meat thermometer, the latest aid to perfection in meat cookery. This little instrument is inserted in the thickest part of the roast. It registers the internal temperature of the meat, and a scale shows what degrees of doneness this represents.

Stresses Economy Meat Dishes.

But roasting meat is only one part of Miss Conklin's varied and complete program. Of special interest is her demonstration of dishes cooked from less demanded cuts of meat which are well flavored and high in food value and which can be cooked by the proper methods to delicious tenderness.

New ways of broiling steaks and chops will also be of value to homemakers, many of whom consider this a tricky task. The method Miss Conklin uses is very easy and sure of success.

The reason why meat is so valuable in the diet of all members of the family from the standpoint of nutrition, is shown vividly in a series of "Food Value Charts". These charts show that meat is a rich source of protein and of calories, also of phosphorus, which works with calcium to prevent tooth decay, and that it is a source of some of the essential vitamins.

COLLEGE FOR CO-OP EXECUTIVES

(Co-op League News Service)

NEW YORK — The Cooperative League Institute, a college for prospective cooperative executives, opened here October 11 with students from 13 states and one foreign country enrolled. Thirty-five prominent educators and executives in the cooperative movement will deliver special lectures during the course of the Institute.

Expressing his enthusiasm over the prospects for the co-op college, Dr. James P. Warbasse, director of the Institute and president of The Cooperative League of the U.S.A., declared, "This signals the opening of our first national cooperative institution for the training of executives, educators and leaders for the consumers cooperative movement. With the rapid growth of American cooperatives during the last few years we have become increasingly aware of the necessity to provide adequate training for the future leaders of the movement."

Combining both practical and academic training, the opening four month course calls for two months of lectures, discussions, seminars, research and cooperative observation, followed by two months of field work with co-ops in various sections of the country. Students will return to New York for a short final session after the two months of field work. Several students have positions in the movement awaiting them at the completion of the course and several co-ops have arranged for students to do field work with their organizations.

Lectures are held at the new school for Social Research. Library, seminar rooms and the headquarters of the institute are at the Cooperative League House, 167 West 12th Street.

"We are very well pleased with the calibre of our students," declared Lionel Perkins, registrar. "The twenty carefully selected students represent states as far apart as Massachusetts and California. One student is a German refugee educated in the University of Berlin. Seven have degrees from American universities."

4-H CLUB NEWS

By Grace Benschel

Sears Roebuck and Company offered a prize to 4-H sewing club girls whereby they would equal any prize a girl won at a fair on their sewing. The only requirement was that the girls buy their materials from their company.

The Umatilla Sewing club members accepted this offer and have received their checks covering the amount of the prizes the girls won at the project and 4-H county fairs. Prizes were given by Sears Roebuck and Company for clothing, home making, room improvement and style revue.

Mary Margaret and Agnes Kennedy received money for clothing; Veta Moran and Catherine Kennedy for clothing and style revue; and Grace Benschel for clothing, homemaking and room improvement.

This plan was an encouragement to the girls and they hope that it shall be continued next year.

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

You can pay as high as you want for remedies claimed to relieve the pain of Headache, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, etc. But the medicine so many doctors generally approve—the one used by thousands of families daily—is Bayer Aspirin—15¢ a dozen tablets—about 1¢ apiece. Simply take 2 Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions.

Usually this will ease such pain in a remarkably short time. For quick relief from such pain which exhausts you and keeps you awake at night—ask for genuine Bayer Aspirin.
