The Commercial club is going to revive activities after a rest during the summer and early fall. There is plenty of good men to do the job. Hermiston is a live town with growing opportunities and a live commercial club is essential to the growth of the surrounding area. Men are becoming aroused to their public responsibilities and many things will be accomplished toward the growth of town and country. It has served these purposes well in years past with the greater opportunities for service seen each day.

The Red Cross drive will start about November 15th. Are you ready to do your part for this worthy cause by giving your $1.00 or whatever small part you can. Buy your Red Cross stamps and plan on using them on your Christmas packages, cards and letters. The Red Cross always comes to the scene of disaster, flood or fire, with its corps of workers and supplies, and unless the individual has experienced the benefits, it is hard to realize how far reaching the Red Cross program is. Give your $1.00 without hesitancy!

Any Job—Well Done.

Jobs may be short these days, in the professions as well as the trades, but there is still an unfilled need for men and women of outstanding ability and training. So says William R. White, New York state superintendent of banks, in an address before Burknell college students.

There's always room at the top; yes for one out of a thousand. For the person who has trained for that specific job there may be a chance that he will reach the top but what of the other nine hundred and ninety-nine who are not so outstanding in ability and training. Often they must seek jobs in other fields.

Is the need today really for "superior persons?" Our answer is "No." We need more young people who are willing to follow the trades of their fathers, the farmer, the plumber, the tinsmith, the silver-smith, and the mechanic, which will give them a real job, honestly and pridefully done. Not seeking the job that will draw the biggest salary for the least effort, but the job that will give pride in doing well.

A contented people is what we need. A people willing to live with a moderate income, with less striving to be something great, to do something spectacular. A need to do the small jobs well, with a feeling of pride in accomplishment, which will greatly influence and lessen the feeling of strife, malice, jealousy, hatred, all of which breed unhappiness and disaster.

A willingness to work and a desire and determination to accomplish things with what we have is a great need today. Any job—well done.

Mr. N. J. Vanskike
"Vigorbilt" Hatchery
Hermiston, Oregon

Dear Sir:
The White Leghorn pullets purchased from you about three years ago were far superior to any I have had since from other hatcheries. As I want to be sure this time of placing my order early enough with you to secure your chicks, I am giving my order now for 300 baby chicks and 100 four week old pullets.

The pullets we had from you developed faster, were so much larger and laid better than those we now have.

Yours truly,
Chris P. Brown
