A Desert Highway.

The State of Oregon, chambers of commerce, Bonneville enterprises, and other agencies spend much money annually advertising the state's resources and attractions, and yet, someone wants to build a half million dollar highway through sagebrush desert and leave off the main line of travel a half dozen active communities, and many miles of improved areas.

Along the fifty miles of proposed road from Pendleton to Boardman, not one town or even a service station, exist. It would be a speedway that would save motorists about six minutes from Pendleton to Portland. If accidents occur in winter or the heat of summer, or in sweeping and blinding windstorms, aid can come only from passing motorists who will be impatient to get out of the inclemencies as quickly as possible. Much more might be said against this projected dream, and will be said if the project is attempted and state money is to be spent to the exclusion of more worthy highway construction.

No one seems to father the job of the new survey and just now it is said that it is only to keep a few star engineers busy, pending other work by the state, which is good for the boys, but how about what may follow?

SHIRLEY TEMPLE IN GREATEST ROLE

A Shirley Temple more glorious than anyone has ever known and a beloved story that has enthralled millions the world over is starting at the Oasis theatre Sunday, in the never-to-be-forgotten picture "Heidi," Johanna Spyri's enchanting tale brought to such laughing, loving life that it touches the deepest corners of the heart.

Everywhere readers in all languages have been charmed by the warmth, tenderness and beauty of the Swiss Alps and all the colorful folk dwelling up just under the stars, into whose lives "Heidi" brings tenderness and mirth and courage. An embittered mountaintop exile is reclaimed from his fierce hate of the world by the heroine, who brings him a new zest for life, and a young girl is given strength and the will to walk again in the story that has thrilled readers of every country.
