IMPORTANT FARM BUREAU MEETING

The Umatilla Project Farm Bureau will hold an important meeting Friday, January 14, in the Union church at 8:00 p. m. for members and all interested parties. P. J. Flaherty, a representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will be present to speak to the members. This announcement was made by H. J. Ott, president of the organization.

F. B. Auxiliary Meeting.

The next Farm Bureau Auxiliary meeting will be held Friday, January 7, with Mrs. Emma Hutchison and Mrs. Margaret Blahm on the program committee. Mrs. Mary Buell, Ethel Hughes and Edna Baragar are on the refreshment committee. Members and friends are asked to start the new year right by attending the meetings, as you can help to help others.

Work Sheet Time Extended.

The closing dates for filing work sheets under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation program has been extended to January 15. Farmers who desire to sign up for the 1938 year should do so at the assistant county agent's office at their earliest convenience.

Baby Beef Tour.

Beef club members will have an opportunity to see the fourteen baby beef calves purchased by different club members for the 1938 club year Sunday afternoon, January 9. The tour will start promptly at 1:00 P. M. from the assistant county agent's office.

4-H CLUB NEWS

A meeting of boys and girls interested in 4-H dairy and pig clubs will be held at the assistant county agent's office Monday evening, at 8:00 P. M., January 10. The purpose of this meeting is to reorganize dairy and pig clubs for the 1938 year and enroll new members.

It is essential that local leaders of livestock clubs be present at this meeting as plans for local leader training meetings will be discussed at this time. The success of 4-H club work depends in a large measure on the help received from local leaders. In order that leaders can make the best out of their time a uniform plan should be worked out for this area.

Parents are cordially invited to attend this meeting as plans will be discussed that will need their advice and counsel.

DAIRYMEN'S PROGRAM SOON

COQUILLE—Details of the program of the annual meeting of the Oregon Dairymen's association here January 21 and 22 are nearing completion, according to word received from state officers. Chief outside speaker will be C. T. Conklin, secretary of the national Ayrshire Breeders association, with headquarters in Brandon, Vt. Other Oregon speakers will deal with work of the Oregon Milk Control board, new progress in disease control, dairy products marketing and the state quality campaign.

Group to Promote Baker Spuds

BAKER—The purpose of the newly-formed Baker Potato Growers' association is to promote the welfare of the local industry, improve price levels and encourage more general use of home-grown potatoes, says County Agent P. T. Fortner, who assisted the group in organizing and planning a program. Clyde Ward of Baker is president of the new association; Albert Brown, Heines, vice-president, and Robert Kelly, Baker, secretary-treasurer.

NATIONAL FARMERS UNION MEET

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—The tendency of farm groups to turn from political regulation to the organization of producers and consumers cooperatives as the permanent means of achieving economic equality is indicated by the special full-day program on cooperatives which was held immediately following this year's regular program of the National Farmers Union convention.

The setting aside of a special cooperative day during the convention, which was done for the first time this year, "will mark a new start in the development of cooperation," according to Editor A. W. Ricker of the Farmers Union Herald. "Henceforth," said Mr. Ricker, "the emphasis will be more on cooperation and less dependency on political regulation." Editor L. S. Herron of the Nebraska Union Farmer, declared that "Cooperation holds the answer" to such contrasts as profits and poverty, so-called surpluses and unemployment.

Cooperative managers shared the program with the editors. Chairman of the cooperative day was C. L. McCarthy, manager of the Farmers Union State Exchange, Omaha, Nebraska. Said J. L. Nolan, manager of the oil department of the Farmers Union Central Exchange, St. Paul, "There are tremendous possibilities in consumer cooperation."

COLLEGE YOUTH DISCUSS CO-OP

NEW YORK—A notable difference in the thinking of college students and their professors is indicated by the inclusion of consumers cooperative in the program of two national college student organizations and their omission in the sessions of two national college professors associations held during the Christmas holidays.

Speaking before the National Assembly of Student Christian Associations meeting at Miami University and Western College, Oxford, Ohio, December 27 to January 1, Wallace J. Campbell, Assistant Secretary of the Cooperative League of the U.S.A., called for the organization of eating, housing and other types of cooperatives on college campuses to reduce the high cost of college education and challenged the assembled students to organize "A Crusade Against Poverty" in America as powerful as the Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions of a generation ago. "The youth of today," said Mr. Campbell, "must take hold of the steering wheel of their own economic destinies. College graduates should lead the way in organizing for economic democracy as our forefathers organized for political democracy."

The annual American Student Union Conference held at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., likewise discussed consumers cooperatives along with labor unions, international peace associations and allied subjects. Representing the Co-operative Movement on the program was Robert L. Smith, Assistant Secretary of the Eastern Cooperative League, who emphasized employment in cooperatives as an expanding vocation for college youth today when other avenues are so generally blocked.

In contrast to the programs of the students, those of their professors at the sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting at Indianapolis, and the Allied Social Science Associations at Atlantic City were noticeably devoted to general economic theories and the discussion of attempted government regulation and omitted all discussion of cooperatives from their regular programs.

TRACTOR COURSE OPENS JAN. 10

CORVALLIS—Farmers, young or old interested in learning more about the operation and care of farm tractors, particularly the newer diesel types, will find much of interest in a two-week tractor short course starting at Oregon State college, January 10, believe staff men of the agricultural engineering department, who will be in charge of the work. Farm equipment of various kinds will be included in the course, though most of the instruction and laboratory work will deal with tractors.

REA ELECTRIC POWER AT COST

As construction of the rural electric line advances and the time approaches when we must have our buildings wired in preparation for light and power in our homes, it is natural there should be some speculation among the members as to the probable rate (or cost) to be charged for electric energy. This is a question that is perplexing members of the board of directors at this time, since there are a number of "unknown factors" with which we must deal in the beginning.

It is necessary to bear in mind that this is a cooperative and that electric current will be delivered to members at cost as soon as the cost can be ascertained, but that operation cannot proceed for any considerable length of time below the average aggregate expense. Included in this expense is a stipulated amount to be set aside each month as a sinking fund for the purpose of reimbursing the Rural Electrification Administration for moneys advanced for material and construction of the line. This sum, together with operating costs and taxes, constitute, virtually, a fixed overhead charge to be met each month. But the cost of electric energy purchased from the Pacific Light & Power company cannot be pre-determined with accuracy because cost is figured upon a sliding scale with the maximum load (highest amount in use at any time during the day) becoming a prominent factor in determining the rate. But since a small amount of power comes at a very high rate per kilowatt, and when the brackets of consumption are reached, the cost to the association per kilowatt hour is reduced to one cent or even six tenths of a cent, it will be evident to each member that the monthly expense, in the aggregate, will be approximately the same whether a small or a larger amount of energy is purchased and that as the volume increases the cost per unit of energy decreases rapidly. The greater the volume the lower the rate per kilowatt hour.

This leads up to the question of the minimum rate to be charged for service, which rate has been fixed by the board at the lowest charge possible, and still pay expenses. And since the total cash to be raised each month will vary but little whether a small or a large amount of energy is used, it can readily be understood that if each member strives to hold his consumption to a minimum, then the minimum would have to be raised in order that the revenue might be sufficient to meet the expense. On the other hand, if each member should increase consumption by adding electric conveniences and labor saving equipment to the home, his additional cost would be small indeed when compared with the benefits.

It is not the intention here to encourage a prodigal waste of electric energy, but to explain that after the essential overhead and expenses have been met, the additional use of the current adds so little to the total that the rate per kilowatt hour can be materially reduced. This article is intended as an introduction to additional information contemplated by the board of directors. It is expected that some free demonstrations for educational purposes can be arranged for in the near future.

A paper on the advantages of daylight use of electric energy as it affects this association will appear in an early issue.

POMONA GRANGE AT CECIL JANUARY 8

Morrow County Pomona Grange will meet at Cecil on Saturday, January 8. A business meeting will be called in the forenoon. Lunch will be served by the Grange ladies at noon.

The public is cordially invited to attend the program in the afternoon about 1:30. W. J. Wilcox, manager of the Oregon Grange Wholesale, will be the principal speaker. J. Belanger, county agent, will also talk on county wide subjects and there will be various other numbers on the program.

Supper will be served in the evening. Officers of the Pomona and some of the subordinate Granges will be installed. Fifth degree will also be conferred in the evening.

Hot "After-School" Lunch Best BEND—The "hungeriest time of the day" for most school children is the moment they arrive home from school, believes Mrs. Sara Wertz, home demonstration agent of Deschutes county, who has observed in visiting homes of the county that the boys and girls want to begin eating the minute they arrive. She suggests that it would be well to have some hot dish or hot soup ready for the youngsters when they get home.
