Work Sheet Information.

Work sheet signers under the Agricultural Conservation program in irrigated districts who will harvest and market more than 100 bushels of wheat in 1938 are required to furnish information regarding the number of acres of wheat seeded and the number of acres to be harvested as grain. This information should be submitted to the assistant county agent's office in Hermiston by June 15, 1938.

Cooking Club Organized.

The Blue Ribbon Cooking club was organized Tuesday, May 31, at a meeting held at the home of H. M. Sommerer, of which Anne Sommerer was leader. The members elected Kay Keener, president, Ruth McCulley, vice president, Myra Getchell, secretary, Norma Getchell, reporter. The program for the year will be arranged by a committee composed of Ruth McCulley, Donna Keener, and Norma Getchell. The club met again Thursday, June 2.

GRANGERS URGED TO MEETINGS

Now this is the law of the jungle, As old and true as the sky, And the wolf who will keep it will prosper And the wolf who will break it must die.

As the creepers encircle the tree trunk The law runneth forward and back, The strength of the pack is the wolf, And the strength of the wolf is the pack. —Kipling.

The above is as true of the grange as the jungle. To be a successful Grange, every officer must be present, doing his utmost to support his office.

Come to Grange, June 9th. An outside speaker has been contacted and will come if possible. The Worthy Master would appreciate your presence. Westland Grange Lecturer.

STUDY WEEVIL CONTROL ON PEAS

With practical control of the pea weevil on garden and canning peas a proved success, a study of more complete control on Austrian winter field peas which are grown for feed is being carried on this year by entomologists at the Oregon experiment station.

Growers who wish to protect their Austrian peas are advised to apply a rotenone dust mixture promptly after blooming starts. Such dust must contain at least 1% of one percent rotenone to be effective, and is applied at the rate of from 20 to 25 pounds per acre, preferably with hooded dusters. As the weevil first infests the edges of the field, it is usually unnecessary to dust more than an outside strip 150 to 250 feet wide.

Many other factors besides dusting enter into the complete control of weevils in Austrian winter field peas, says Dr. Don C. Mote, station entomologist. Early harvesting, which allows for fumigating the crop while many of the weevils are still small and before much damage is done to the seed, is particularly important. Station circular 126 gives additional control suggestions.

LEADER EXPLAINS PROPER CARE FOR PILLOW FEATHERS

While pillows are usually taken for granted as an article of household furnishings and given little thought after once acquired, the feathers as well as the covering do wear out, and need renovating about once every 10 years or oftener, says Mrs. Eileen Buxton, extension specialist in clothing at Oregon State college.

The natural oil in the feathers dries out after a while, and the quills then become brittle and break she says. When pillows are no longer soft, elastic and light, they probably need new feathers.

Although goose feathers are much better for pillows than the feathers of turkeys, ducks or chickens, the latter can be used if the fowl has been dry picked or cleaned, but scalding injures the quality of the feathers, Mrs. Buxton says. Geese may be plucked as often as every six weeks through the spring, summer, fall and winter, up to the mating season. Care is necessary, however, with feathers obtained in this manner to see that they are of the proper ripeness, which means that the quills appear dry and do not contain blood.

In plucking the entire plumage of a fowl, the tail and wing feathers are removed first. These are of no value for feathers to be used in pillows. The ammonia content of wet feathers causes them to deteriorate rapidly. Dirty or bloody feathers may be sprayed with water and the moisture then extracted by squeezing or putting through a wringer, first putting the feathers in a muslin bag. They are then dried thoroughly in a warm place, with an occasional shaking. A warm, breezy day is best, keeping the feathers in the shade most of the time.

If the fowl has been dry picked and the feathers do not need washing, they are put in a muslin bag and hung in a dry, warm place for about a week, being stirred thoroughly once a day. This will leave them in a sweet, dry condition, free from odors, and ready for use.

CO-OPERATIVE CAFETERIA

CHAIN REPORTS $449,000

BUSINESS IN '37-'38

(Co-op League News Service) NEW YORK—America's largest cooperative food service celebrated its 18th birthday May 20 when members of Consumers Cooperative Services met for a demonstration dinner and annual meeting at the 25th Street cafeteria. Organized in 1920, the co-op now operates a chain of 10 cafeterias, a central bakery, three grocery stores, a credit union and library service.

Mary Long, manager, reported that the business for the fiscal year ending March 31 totaled $449,000, an increase of $15,000 over the preceding year. Although the co-op increased its wages $12,000 under a contract with the Cafeteria Workers Union, Local 302, it ended the year with a small surplus.

"When C.C.S. was organized 18 years ago, there were only two or three other cooperatives in the Metropolitan area," L. E. Woodcock, president of the cooperative, told the annual meeting. "Today, there are more than 80 co-ops in New York and vicinity and one of the important jobs ahead of C.C.S. will be to work with these other cooperatives as closely as possible in an aggressive program of cooperative expansion." Eight candidates for the board of directors of the co-op outlined their programs as the closing feature of the membership meeting.

MAIL ORDER CO-OP VOTES TO "REFER" JAPANESE BOYCOTT

(Co-op League News Service) NEW YORK—At a special meeting here, May 23, called to confirm the business of its annual meeting which failed to bring out a quorum of its 3500 members three weeks ago, Cooperative Distributors voted to "refer to its membership" a motion to boycott Japanese goods; certified the election of ten new members of the board of directors; and received the manager's report showing business for the year just under $100,000. Cooperative Distributors is a mail order cooperative serving individual consumers, labor unions, non-profit organizations and co-ops throughout the country.

The motion to boycott Japanese goods precipitated a heated discussion. After lengthy debate the question was referred to the board with instructions to refer it to the entire membership in the next mailing.

The fiscal year was changed at the annual meeting in 1937 so the current report covers only ten months. Business for that period totaled $95,972. Because of the costs involved in moving to its new headquarters at 116 East 16 Street, the co-op sustained a small loss for the year but Olga Hourwich, manager, reported that the first three months of the present fiscal year have shown a small surplus.

The directors, elected by a mail vote of the entire membership were: two year terms: Ruth Brindze, P. A. Waring, Caroline Whitney, Miriam E. West and Clinton W. Keyes; one year terms: John Edelman, David Glusker, Thomas Cohen, Aaron Gilmartin and E. J. Lever. James Rorty, Leon Kofod, Meyer Parodneck, Colston Warne and J. G. Brainard were carried over from last year.

OVER 200 DELEGATES ATTEND NORTHERN STATES CO-OP YOUTH CONVENTION

(Co-op League News Service) Superior, Wisconsin—Two hundred and thirty-three young people from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, gathered here May 7 and 8 for the 8th Annual Conference and Convention of the Northern States Cooperative Youth League, denounced war "in which the youth bear the heaviest burden of death and suffering" and asked that the government re-route money from armaments to funds for public works and relief. Delegates reported growing interest in cooperative youth activities and laid plans for an expanded program this coming year.

A full time secretary will be hired to coordinate cooperative youth work in the North Central States according to a decision of the congress. The delegates also voted to sponsor the Annual Cooperative Youth Course, a cooperative music festival, debate and athletic contests. The Co-op Future, official publication of the youth league, received enthusiastic approval and delegates voted to affiliate with the American Youth Congress. The Northern States Cooperative Youth League endorsed the creation of a national education committee to build up sentiment for a national cooperative youth league.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR RECORD 4-H SUMMER SCHOOL SESSION

Oregon State College—Of the more than 1800 Oregon boys and girls expected to attend the twenty-fourth annual 4-H club summer school at OSC June 6 to 17, approximately 70 per cent will hold scholarships awarded them by various business and community organizations, fairs, individuals and others in recognition of excellent work done, according to H. C. Seynmore, state club leader.
