Columbia Grange Club.

The Home Economics club of Columbia Grange will meet at the home of Mrs. Emil Zivney, Friday afternoon, beginning at 2:00 o'clock. Friends and visiting grange ladies welcome.

FARMERS ORGANIZE HARVESTING ASSN.

Twelve Umatilla county farmers have organized the Stanfield Harvesting association near Stanfield, under the sponsorship of the community and cooperative services section, Farm Security Administration, USDA, announces R. S. Thompson, county FSA supervisor.

Facilities of a combine harvester will be made available for use on member farms and a limited number of other farmers in the community may be enabled to participate. The new cooperative is set up on the master-borrower plan with members signing participation agreements on a fee basis.

Irwin J. Couch is manager of the service. Members include H. A. Owens, F. E. Laughlin, F. E. Fredrickson, Wm. L. Scaff, Chas. Herrick, G. L. Dunning, Sam Nudo, J. V. Stephens, Phillip Boggs, A. S. Gonseth and Lester L. Tenney.

FIELD DAY GROUP BIDS FAREWELL TO DAVE E. STEPHENS

MORO—The last field day at the Sherman County branch experiment station to be conducted personally by the retiring superintendent Dave E. Stephens, has served to emphasize to a half hundred visiting farmers the important contribution the station has made to the agriculture of the inland empire.

Superintendent Stephens, who has been on the federal staff of the bureau of plant industry as well as on the state experiment station staff, has been transferred to Washington, D. C., to act as co-ordinator between the bureau and the Soil Conservation service.

Those who attended the field day saw the first crested wheat grass planting made in this state. After 24 years it is still maintaining a good stand and is bearing seed every year. There are now 150 different grasses in the nursery maintained on the station.

The importance of these grass studies was brought out by E. R. Jackman, extension agronomist, who said that no country in the world has been able to maintain a permanent agriculture without developing a grass rotation of some sort. Such a rotation may be "in the cards" for the dry-land wheat belt some day, he ventured.

Scores of wheat trials were viewed by the visitors. Smut resistance coupled with yield and quality are the chief goals in this work. Superintendent Stephens is leaving three varieties outstanding in these respects as a result of his work. These are Rex, a soft white wheat, and Rio and Oro among the hard red turkey varieties.

Tillage experiments viewed revealed, as in past years, that plowing more than five inches deep is wasted effort in eastern Oregon wheat lands. Yield tests comparing disked land with that plowed with mold board plows showed no appreciable difference. The greatest problem in connection with the now widely used trashy fallow system is weed control.

Trees for shelter belts around dry land farmsteads were also viewed on the station where western yellow pine and Russian olive trees have shown good possibilities for general planting.

A worker honeybee has a sticky secretion between its claws, enabling it to cling to smooth surfaces.

POULTRYMEN URGED TO ADVERTISE

CORVALLIS—Poultrymen are in reality manufacturers of a perishable article of merchandise, and as such should think in terms of preserving its original fine quality, advertising it, and finding industrial uses for eggs other than food, says H. E. Cosby, head of the poultry department at OSC.

"None of us has ever paid any direct money to advertise the very article we manufacture every day," said Cosby. "We have paid, however, a heavy advertising bill through the medium of low seasonal prices. Eggs are being crowded off the breakfast table by numerous highly advertised patented foods and fads. We, as egg manufacturers have maintained a steady, continuous and consistent silence."

FARM GRAIN STORAGE EXAMINED

Word comes from the office of the County Agricultural Conservation association at Pendleton to the effect that farmers expecting to borrow money under the government wheat loan program will need to have their farm storage inspected in case that is the point at which the wheat is to be stored. Public warehouses will be handled by the management.

For that reason farmers expecting to store their grain in their own private elevators or warehouses should get in touch with the county committee of the Agricultural Conservation association at Pendleton, this applying to those expecting to borrow government funds upon the wheat.

FIFTY STUDENTS ATTEND NATIONAL COOPERATIVE RECREATION SCHOOL

(Co-op League News Service) Waukegan, Illinois—Recognizing recreation as an educational technique as well as one of the ends of the cooperative movement, fifty delegates from cooperatives and recreation associations met here June 10 to 22 for the National Cooperative Recreation school.

The school was set up several years ago to provide intensive training in techniques of recreational education which are particularly adaptable to use in cooperatives, church, school and labor organizations.

Instructors at the school included Neva L. Boyd, department of sociology, Northwestern University; Charlotte Chorpennig, dramatics department, Northwestern University; Carl Hutchinson, president of the Cooperative Society for Recreational Education; Margaret Gardner, the Art Institute, Chicago; Phyllis Randall, graduate of the school of music, Minnesota State Teachers College; and Frank Shilston, educational staff of Midland Cooperative Wholesale, director of the school.

The sessions of the recreation school were held on the grounds of the beautiful Joseph Tilton Bowen Country club which is owned by and used as a summer camp for Hull House in Chicago.

CO-OP EDITORS, EDUCATORS, AND RECREATION LEADERS MEET AT WAUKEGAN

(Co-op League News Service) Waukegan, Illinois—Sixty cooperative educational directors, editors, advertising men and recreation directors met here June 23, 24 and 25 for the third annual Publicity and Education Conference of the Cooperative League of the USA. Those attending represented most of the regional consumers cooperative associations from New York to Kansas City.

An outstanding feature of the conference was the report of the growth of discussion groups as a basic part of the education program of several regional cooperative associations which have found in them a pattern of voluntary family participation which tends to strengthen the democratic control and increase the efficient organization of cooperatives. One recent experiment in this type of educational procedure is the Advisory Councils organized in 300 units of twelve families to a unit set up by the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative association. Another development of a similar nature is the Neighbor Night program launched by Midland Cooperative Wholesale during the past winter.

As a demonstration of the effectiveness of the discussion method, all sessions of the conference were divided into brief presentations of factual material followed by division of the delegates into small discussion groups to thrash out cooperative policy and report back to the conference.

Mrs. Eleanor Barton, former general secretary of the Womens Cooperative Guilds of Great Britain, now on tour of the U. S., in a brief talk to the conference told the delegates that world peace would only come when cooperatives have built an economic base for world peace.

Among the speakers and discussion leaders were Oscar Cooley, editor, Cooperative Builder; James Moore, editor, Ohio Farm Bureau News; James Cummins, editor, Cooperative Consumer; Joseph Gilbert, editor, Midland Cooperator; E. R. Bowen, general secretary of the Cooperative League of the U.S.A.; Carl Hutchison, Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative association; Glenn Thompson, Midland Cooperative Wholesale; V. S. Alanne, Central Cooperative Wholesale; Merlin Miller, Consumers Cooperative association; Gideon Edberg, Franklin Cooperative Creamery; Robert Smith, Eastern Cooperative League; Cecil Crews, Northern States Cooperative League; Anthony Lehner, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative association; H. W. Smoots and Louis Warrington, Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative association; and Wallace Campbell, assistant secretary of the Cooperative League of the U.S.A.

HEALTH CO-OPS SET UP ASSOCIATION OF MEDICAL COOPERATIVES

(Co-op League News Service) New York—Cooperative health associations which were rebuffed when they called on the American Medical association at its recent convention to assume constructive leadership in the drive for voluntary health insurance have set up a clearing house for information which will assist other groups to form medical cooperatives. The newly organized association will be known as the Association of Medical Cooperatives.

In the public announcement of the formation of the association, the directors declared: "Recent events relating to the peoples' search for medical care have indicated that a majority of the lay public and of the doctors favor the development of voluntary health insurance. So great is the public's desire for health protection that fraudulent and unsafe schemes are starting up throughout the country. Some protection must be offered to the public. We feel the A.M.A. has shirked its responsibility by refusing to take an active part in assuring the sound development of organizations to make medical care available to the American people. In view of this default the cooperative medical groups have no alternative but to proceed along these lines."

The program of the association will include legislation authorizing the formation of cooperative health associations on sound lines; research on problems of administra-
