NEW CO-OP MEET TUESDAY

Plans for the final meeting for the purpose of organizing a new farmers' cooperative have been completed and a meeting scheduled for Tuesday, July 26, at the Union church at 8:00 p. m.

All farmers are urged to attend this meeting to hear the report of the committee and complete organization plans for the new cooperative. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

RURAL YOUTH HAS BIG INTEREST IN MORE EDUCATION

Of the 419 rural young people between the ages of 16 and 25 recently surveyed by the extension service in Oregon, 198 were either in school or would soon return to it, while 212 had definitely completed their formal education.

Of these 212, only 9.4 per cent had advanced beyond high school. More than half, 58.5 per cent, had completed four years of high school, while 19.8 per cent had gone no farther than the elementary grades. Approximately 1 per cent had not completed elementary school.

Despite this relatively meager training, only one in 10 of the out-of-school young people were definitely planning to return to school, but a third of the remainder desired or hoped to be able to continue their formal education.

The study made by J. R. Beck, rural service specialist of the OSC extension service, and Bernard Joy of the national extension service, also revealed that just over half of the young people in school at the time the survey was made were definitely planning for education beyond high school. An additional 31 per cent had the desire to continue if circumstances permitted. Only one out of six had no desire or plan for a college course or some other advanced training, such as nursing, business college or normal school.

Among those who are out of school, young women had had more schooling than the young men; as 77 per cent of the former were high school graduates, compared with 61 per cent of the latter.

Getting additional education was one of the outstanding needs listed by the young people interviewed. While many of them had given up hope of returning to school, an overwhelming majority of both those in school and out of school expressed interest in joining with others of similar age in forming organized groups to consider matters of common interest.

WARBASSE, BENSON AND MONTGOMERY SPEAK AT MIDLAND CO-OP MEETING

(Co-op League News Service)

Minneapolis—Dr. James P. Warbasse, president of The Cooperative League of the USA, Governor Elmer Benson of Minnesota, and Donald E. Montgomery, Consumers Counsel of the AAA, told 800 delegates meeting here for the 12th annual meeting of the Midland Cooperative Wholesale, June 13, 14 and 15, that the cooperatives must intensify their educational work and strengthen the understanding between consumers and producers if they are to successfully eliminate economic exploitation.

Dr. Warbasse emphasized the importance of cooperative education as a business investment and urged cooperatives to expand into new fields of consumer service as rapidly as possible; but warned them to stay out of debt whether to the banks or to the government.

E. G. Cort, general manager of Midland, reported that the wholesale's sales volume totaled $3,696,000 in 1937 with a net savings on wholesale operations of $64,000. He also described the educational work being carried on as preparation for a plan to set up a chain of cooperative grocery stores as soon as fifteen local communities supply funds for their own stores. The delegates voted to increase the capitalization of the co-op wholesale from $500,000 to $1,000,000 and increased the limit of indebtedness to equal capitalization.

HUNDREDS GLEAN NEW CROP IDEAS

UNION—A rare new creeping alfalfa, plants suitable for alkali growing, and various grasses seeded with alfalfa were among the new crop possibilities which interested some 500 visitors in three parties that inspected the livestock branch experiment station at Union in July.

Three consecutive field days were devoted to Union county grangers under the leadership of Frank Wright and Clarence Carter; to Baker county farmers led by County Agent P. T. Fortner, and to a Wallowa party led by County Agent Garnet Best.

The new creeping alfalfa is expected to be of most value in pastures, if it proves as suitable as early tests indicate. The best alkali plants observed are strawberry clover and Canada wild rye. Both of these have shown more tolerance to alkali than most any other useable forage plant.

The plan of seeding a certain amount of grass with alfalfa in order to prevent wild grasses such as cheat getting a foothold continues to show excellent possibilities in station trials. The best grasses for this purpose appear to be tall oat grass, fairway crested wheat grass, and meadow fescue.

Fertilizer tests observed on the rotation plots indicated best results from manure and phosphorus, with the latter showing distinct increases in yields on grain. Weed control plots drew a great deal of attention from the visitors. Superintendent D. E. Richards has plots where morning glories were killed out by the cultivation method, and others where they have been held in check successfully by alfalfa.

Seed flax plots were of special interest to Union county farmers, many of whom are raising considerable acreages this year. It is estimated that from 1000 to 1200 acres of seed flax will be harvested in the county, some of which will yield as high as 18 bushels to the acre.

MEAT DEALERS WARNED AGAINST PRESERVATIVES

Meat dealers were warned this week by the State Department of Agriculture that the use of sulphite preservatives in their products constitutes an adulteration of the food in violation of state law.

The coming of the warm summer months has induced a few meat dealers to use the chemical, officials say. As the chemical improves the appearance of the meat, the consumer is lead to believe that he is purchasing food of better quality than he is getting.

Several court actions for this cause have been brought by the department within recent weeks.

"It is necessary that perishable foods be preserved," says J. D. Mickle, foods and dairies division chief, "but today all reasonable ends in the preservation of meat are accomplished by cold storage. "The department takes the position that the consumer is always entitled to know the condition, quality and contents of the food he eats. However, where we find sulphites in use, the consumer is not told of this fact."

AMERICAN YOUTH CONGRESS URGES YOUNG PEOPLE TO ORGANIZE COOPERATIVES

(Co-op League News Service)

Berea, Ohio — Three hundred youth leaders from 55 young peoples' organizations from Boston to California met on the campus of Baldwin Wallace College, here over the Fourth of July week end and dedicated their "Independence Day" to a nation-wide planning conference of the American Youth Congress. World Peace, Labor and Cooperatives were major points raised for consideration at the conference. The Consumer and Cooperative Commission of the Congress presented recommendations endorsed by the Congress as a whole which called on youth and youth-serving organizations to introduce cooperative education into their programs; to organize cooperatives on college campuses to cut the costs of education; to urge public schools and colleges to include cooperative courses in their curricula; to join cooperatives in their home communities or organize co-ops where there are none in operation. "This course of action can help tremendously to pull our country out of its economic chaos, build a secure cooperative economic democracy and make for world peace."

THE FIRST ISSUE OF "COOPERATIVE HEALTH" IS OFF THE PRESS

(Co-op League News Service)

New York—The first issue of Cooperative Health, new official journal of cooperative medicine, was published this week with feature articles by Dr. J. P. Warbasse, president of the Cooperative League of the U.S.A., Professor C. E. A. Winslow, Yale Medical School, Dr. Kingsley Roberts, medical director of the Bureau of Cooperative Medicine, Dr. C. Rufus Rorem, group hospital authority, and Arthur Kallett, director of Consumers Union.

Dr. Warbasse in his article, "Cooperative Medicine," accused the medical profession of taking the tradesman's attitude in conforming to an economic scarcity. He declared that only under a system of cooperative medicine could the service motive replace the profit motive which has led to the present state of disorganized medical services.

Professor Winslow in laying down the fundamentals of a sound, preventative medical program in an article, "Preventive Medicine in a Cooperative Health Program," declared, "While all medical practice, private or public, involves some prevention, the substantial gains which can be made have not even been approached. If preventive measures are to be more than pious aspirations, it is essential that the traditional medical-economic relationships be so modified that the barriers to such effort blocking both the physician and the patient, be removed. The service itself must be separated from its financing and cooperative medicine is one answer."

Dr. Rorem predicted that group hospitalization would reach ten million persons within five years. Dr. Roberts in his article pointed out the many benefits which a system of group medical practice offers to the patient. Arthur Kallett warned that some method must be found to protect the public from the dangerous drugs which are put upon the market. He declared that a survey of medical kits in poorer sections of New York revealed that the people spent enough on worthless patent medicines to pay for adequate care in a cooperative health association. Cooperative Health, the official journal of the Association of Medical Cooperatives, is published monthly. The subscription rate is $2 a year.
