Necessary—But Defeated.
 The proposed port at Umatilla has been defeated, but the necessity still remains. Why have boats without facilities? Why build a channel from Celilo to Umatilla at a cost of a million dollars with no place to handle tonnage? Why agitate the question of navigation of the Columbia without preparing for the benefits of lower rates through water transportation?
 However, these questions seem to have been forgotten through some misunderstanding of the voters. Probably through undue fear of taxation, or by misrepresentation of purposes, some were misled. When it goes before the people again, and it must, and will, a better campaign of education, and a more definite presentation of the program, will be developed.
 This is not a port alone for the town of Umatilla. That is the smallest part of it. It is a port for all of Umatilla and Morrow counties, Union and Baker counties and points east to Boise. It is just as important to the old Oregon Trail region as the old trail was to the pioneers of the same region. A public dock for all the boat lines is as necessary as a free river.

Pasture Mixtures Worked Out.
 KLAMATH FALLS—Pasture mixtures featuring brome grass, alsike clover, meadow fescue, western rye, white clover and some bent grass and bluegrass were worked out by County Agent C. A. Henderson's office recently for seven farms requesting this assistance. Recommendations were also made for use of yellow blossom sweet clover, alkali grass and strawberry clover on three other farms, and for seeding of both crested wheat grass and Ladak alfalfa on still other farms of the county.

Good Cows Bring Good Profit.
 DALLAS—The advantage of keeping high producing cows is again seen in the annual report of the Polk County Dairy Herd Improvement association recently completed, which shows that the 10 highest producers brought an average return per cow of $164.73 above feed costs, while the 10 lowest producers averaged only $48.46 above feed costs. The average production per cow for the 11 herds on test was more than 300 pounds of butterfat, with one herd averaging 392.7 pounds. Ninety-four cows produced over 350 pounds of butterfat each, with many of them in the 400 pound class.
