Irrigon Grange Social Night.

The regular Irrigon Grange social night will be held Saturday, October 15. Cards will be played and a pot luck supper served.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Mothers met fifty years ago "prayerfully to consider" the upbringing of their children. In much the same frame of mind, though they do not describe it in those words, mothers meet today. At a meeting to be held at the Vert Memorial in Pendleton, on October 19th, parents are invited to attend the first regular parent education meeting of the year, the Family Living Conference, to be held under the auspices of the extension service, with Miss Frances Clinton, county home demonstration agent in charge of arrangements.

The topic for discussion at the meeting will be "How has parent education changed?" The topic is an evidence of change and growth, because not so very many years ago it would have read this way, "What is parent education?" or, "Why educate parents?" Parent education has become a live and growing movement which is sweeping the country today. Oregon already has 63 active study clubs with 837 members enrolled, organized under the extension service in only four counties. Of these Umatilla county claims 10 with 160 members.

Do you like to reminisce? One experiences a sense of elation when one realizes how times have changed and what progress has been made. There is a reason for going back to "when mother was a girl," an important purpose to be served by contrasting the past and the present. Behind all of the modern theories which have evolved by way of experimentation and research, lie causes which reach far into the past. Problems of parents remain much the same, but practice, approach and method of child care and guidance have changed. Are you interested in knowing why the changes have come? Under the leadership of Mrs. Maud Morse, extension specialist in parent education, we shall contrast parent education of yesteryear, with parent education of today—without scoffing at the past and without holding up the new methods as infallible. It helps to stabilize a fast growing movement to look back over the course which it has followed and to stop for contemplation before continuing.

Registration will start at 10:00 a. m., and the morning will be devoted to a discussion of parent education past and present. In the afternoon, there will be a discussion of any questions which you care to drop in the Question Box. Then we shall turn to mapping our course for the future in parent education. The organization of study clubs and the subject matter to be presented this year will be discussed in detail. This in itself is an evidence of how times have changed. It is no longer necessary to hold your child on your lap while you try to listen to the speakers. It is no longer considered a good practice to talk about children in front of children, nor to expect children to remain quiet for an hour or two without anything to keep them occupied. A competent person will be in charge of their care so that mothers and as many fathers as can, may attend and enjoy the meeting.

PROFITS OF WAR

From the Farm Journal

Every hour brings worse news from the Old World. Worse from Spain to Japan. Worse on the borders of Czechoslovakia. Worse everywhere except in our own lucky hemisphere.

Experts are now expecting ten years of bloodshed and looting in China. London hears that Franco is giving up, but not under any circumstances stopping warfare.

What goes on in the mind of the Austrian Paper-Hanger, not even alienist know. What Stalin plans is a dark mystery. But all omens point to evil years, if not a quarter-century of war.

What shall we farmers do? Make hay while the sun shines. But use tomorrow's profits wisely. Don't forget the blunders of 1917 and 1918. Ask Pop. He knows.

He will tell you how he sold the old farm for $250 an acre cash; how the buyer sold it in three months for $300; and how, in the middle of 1919 a real estate gambler had unloaded it on a stranger for $450 an acre—$100 cash and the balance on mortgage.

Then came the 1920-21 smash. Nobody could make corn or wheat or cotton or milk or hogs earn a return on $450 land. When crop prices collapsed, the last buyers of farms were ruined. So were mortgage holders. Tens of thousands lost their joint and several shirts.

A farm crisis blighted the richest parts of our country. Banks failed. Men killed themselves. Losses offset earlier gains.

Surely we are wiser now than that. Remember! As the prices of wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and other basic commodities rise—and rise they must as more and more millions of Europeans are dragged into wars—don't lose your heads! Sit tight! Take what you can get, but don't go crazy over the war profits.

As the cash rolls in from the unfortunates abroad, pay off your debts. It is the time to get out of debt and refuse to go in again until prices fall. Come out into the clear. It feels fine!

Then buy the solid worth-while things and enjoy life. Buy better machines, better tractors, better horses and mules, better hens, better pigs, better radio sets, better rugs, better kitchen ranges, better plumbing, better clothes, better cars, better everything.

Plow every dollar back into your good earth and your good selves. Don't save money and don't either borrow or lend. Buy!

If you put money in a bank, maybe the bank will lend it to some of the foreign war gangsters in a sly way that outwits all laws to the contrary. Don't save money! Put it where nobody can trick it away from you. Into your stomachs. On your backs. Into your parlors. Into your soil.

CO-OP DORMITORY, STARTED

BY 10 STUDENTS IN 1933,

NOW HAS 625 MEMBERS

(Co-op League News Service)

BERKELEY, Calif.—More than six hundred undergraduates at the University of California in Berkeley are members of the U. C. Students' Cooperative association, a member-owned housing group that in five years has built up a $110,000 a year non-profit business, starting with nothing but the determination of ten depression-hit students who in the fall of 1933 pooled their slim resources to provide low-cost housing so that they could remain in the university. From that start the association has grown to its present membership of 625 men and women.

The single dwelling house that those ten pioneers used has in the course of the co-op's growth been replaced by five large apartment houses which have been converted to the use of the present members. Four of these are men's houses, and one is a women's house. The newest of the men's cooperative units was opened at the beginning of the present school year to take care of the jump in applications for membership for the fall University town. Its 105 members make it the second largest house in the association, there being one men's unit with a membership of 320.

One of the most important developments of the U. C. students' group in the last few years is the newly inaugurated central kitchen plan, which now provides food for three of the houses of the co-op from a single kitchen. Up to the present the various houses have operated as separate units in these matters, but with this central distributing plan, production costs have been cut considerably. Enlargement of the present facilities will soon make it possible for all the houses of the association to be included in the plan.

The U. of C. Student Cooperative is one of a number of similar co-ops in the United States. The National Committee of Student Cooperatives, headed by William Moore, Hanover College, Hanover, Indiana, recently reported that there are 185 student cooperatives with 97,000 members on American campuses.

COOPERATIVES MOST POTENT AGENT OF WORLD PEACE, DECLARES CO-OP PRESIDENT

(Co-op League News Service)

New York—In issuing a final call for the Eleventh Biennial Congress of the Cooperative League of the U.S.A., which will be held in Kansas City, October 12, 13 and 14, Dr. James P. Warbasse, president of the League, declared that the meeting of American consumer cooperatives will not only be an outstanding economic event but will also be an important factor in building world peace.

Describing the forthcoming Congress which will draw together representatives of more than one million members of U. S. consumer cooperatives, Dr. Warbasse declared: "When the Cooperative League was started, twenty-two years ago, the world was in the throes of a great war. There were cooperative societies in the U. S., but there was no cooperative movement. Today there is in this country such a growing movement. Federated with the cooperative societies of forty other countries, it is a part of a great world force. And of all the agencies making for peace, this cooperative movement is the most potent. Developing quietly and, constructively, penetrating every corner of the world, there is hope that this movement, before it is too late, may lead humanity into the ways of peace. The coming congress of the Cooperative League of the United States, to be held in Kansas City, is regarded as an economic event. But to those with knowledge and vision, it is something more. To the discerning, it is a peace congress, building for the security of the country whose name it bears."

More than $10,000,000 worth of commodities are handled yearly by these five organizations. About one-third of this volume is in their grocery departments which serve 560 retail cooperative grocery stores.

While the general principles of the labeling policy have been agreed upon, representatives of the buyers and managers' committee point out that government specifications are not yet available for all commodities and that the final form of the CO-OP label will be determined after co-op managers have studied several proposed designs and they are referred to ultimate consumers for final approval.

The co-op managers and buyers also agreed that, as a general policy, the Red CO-OP label will be used only on the highest quality in the co-op lines and restricted to the Government A and B grades. The Blue CO-OP label will be used for lower priced goods under Government B and C grades. Each label will carry further detailed information about the contents and about the consumers cooperative movement.

Uniform labeling is expected to cut prices in addition to standardizing quality because of savings made by large scale purchasing.

U. S. GROCERY CO-OPS TO ADOPT UNIFORM CO-OP AND GOVERNMENT GRADE LABELING

(Co-op League News Service)

Chicago—Managers and buyers of five regional cooperative associations took steps towards a uniform labeling and A, B, C Government Grading for canned foods at a meeting held here last week. The action crystallized plans which have been discussed for a number of months by the Central Cooperative Wholesale, Superior, Wis.; Consumers Cooperative Association, N. Kansas City, Mo.; The Cooperative Wholesale, Chicago; Midland Cooperative Wholesale, Minneapolis; and the Eastern Cooperative Wholesale, New York, for a greater integration of activities through National Cooperatives, Inc., Chicago buying office for these and six other cooperative wholesalers.

OSC SCHEDULES CONCERT SERIES

(Co-op League News Service)

Oregon State College—Six concert numbers have been scheduled by the college activities board this year for students and others of the general public desiring to attend. More than 3000 of the 4343 students registered have bought membership tickets in the ASOSC this year, entitling them to attend the concert series and to other student body privileges. This year's concert schedule follows:

October 24, Elizabeth Rethberg and Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan opera singing duo; November 9, the Welsh Imperial Singers, male ensemble; February 8, the Vienna Choir Boys, a group of boy singers from Vienna; March 5, Richard Crooks, tenor; April 12, Ted Shawn and his men dancers; April 26, Gladys Swarthout, famous opera and radio mezzo-soprano.
