NATION-WIDE SALES PROMOTION; BUTTER SURPLUS

Washington, D.C.—"To reduce the record-breaking surplus of unconsumed butter in the United States a nation-wide cooperative sales promotion campaign will be inaugurated November 10."

"Participating in this drive," said Mr. Holman, "will be approximately 37,000 retail stores owned by the corporate chains associated with the National Association of Food Chains and 153,000 retail stores associated with the Independent Distributors' Council."

"These stores, together with the chain drug and variety stores, last June and July conducted a month's sales drive on all dairy products at the request of the Federation. Their efforts were very successful and reports coming into this office indicate that thousands of the stores materially increased their sales on all types of dairy products."

"The new drive will be directed particularly toward the moving of butter into consumption of which on October 1 there were 210,000,000 pounds of visible stocks on hand. This was approximately 75,000,000 pounds above the five-year average and was an all time high of surplus stocks. Particular emphasis will be given by the stores to sales drives the weeks of November 10 to 16, December 8 to 14 and January 12 to 18."

"Cooperating with the stores will be the organized groups of dairy farmers and practically the entire commercial side of the dairy industry. This will also include the activities of educational branches of the industry, such as the National Dairy Council and the Milk Industry Foundation."

"In preparation for this campaign we are now forming state and local producer committees throughout the nation. These committees will enlist the cooperation of local commercial trade groups, organizations of women and other agencies."

"Never before has a self-help move of this kind been so comprehensively planned by elements within the dairy industry and the retail distributors' organizations. While attention will be given to moving all types of dairy products of which there are accumulated surpluses, emphasis is being placed upon the butter situation because in the long run the accumulation of butter surpluses more nearly reflects the total surplus situation with regard to the entire supply of dairy products."

"This campaign is being launched at a time when the consumer will be assured of low prices. Present wholesale prices of butter are very low. In fact, I am advised that at only four other times since 1908 in this season of the year have butter prices touched the present low level."

FIRST LADY URGES CONSUMERS TO JOIN COOPERATIVES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Declaring the "age of cooperation is with us to stay," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt last week urged that "where we find it convenient and valuable not only to ourselves but to our neighbors, we should join in cooperative movements."

This forthright statement from the nation's First Lady appeared in the October issue of the Democratic Digest, published by the Women's Division of the Democratic Central Committee. Mrs. Roosevelt's statement was in answer to a question by Mrs. Samuel White, National Committeewoman from Arizona, who asked: "Do you think that consumer cooperatives offer one method of improving conditions for low income families?"

Mrs. Roosevelt said in answer: "I think consumer cooperatives are extremely valuable for low income families, and I believe that the more we study the general cooperative movement in this country, the better off we will be. Many people may wish only to participate to a limited extent in certain cooperative movements, but there is no question in my mind that the age of cooperation is with us to stay and that we should be familiar with every development. Where we find it convenient and valuable not only to ourselves but to our neighbors, we should join in cooperative movements."

Mrs. Roosevelt visited the office of The Cooperative League of the U.S.A. in December, 1937, and discussed with the leaders of the movement the growth of the cooperatives in the United States.

BROWN APPOINTED HEAD OF OREGON MARKET DIVISION

With the appointment of G. A. Brown of Portland as first director of the new marketing work of the board of higher education, Oregon will have the services of a "young man with proved experience in marketing and a knowledge of the north west, as well as an adequate background of technical and general training," in the opinion of the committee recommending the selection to the board. The appointment is effective January 1.

Brown has been for seven years manager of the Interstate Associated Creameries, a federation for sales purposes of 14 cooperative creameries of Oregon and southern Washington. He is a graduate of Oregon State college with other business experience in California before taking his position with interstate. He organized the Central Oregon Cooperative creamery at Redmond.

The division of agricultural and industrial marketing was created by the board of higher education as a result of a study made of Oregon's marketing needs by Dr. W. J. Kerr, chancellor emeritus of the system and former president of Oregon State college. His report called attention to the need for more aggressive marketing of Oregon products, particularly in agriculture.

He recommended a modest beginning with a well-trained director who would take the initiative in applying present knowledge and resources to betterment of marketing in Oregon, coordinating the energies of all existing related agencies both in and out of the state system of higher education.

A statewide advisory committee which considered 16 persons for director unanimously recommended Brown's appointment, after reducing the list to four. Of the original list five withdrew their names because the available salary was insufficient, according to Chancellor F. M. Hunter. Brown's salary will be $5750. Hunter with President Peavy and Erb of the college and university comprised a committee of three to set up the program.

Westland Grange Visited.

At the last regular meeting of the Westland Grange, a brief Halloween program was held, following the business session. The principal number was a speech by Mr. Gill of The Dalles, a brother of the state Grange Master, who spoke of scenes visited in his recent tour of the country. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Daniels of the Echo Grange and Horace Addis of Tillamook Grange. H. B. Darling of Hermiston was taken in as a new member. The next regular meeting, November 10, will be for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year, and all members are urged to attend.

LIVESTOCK OWNERS WARNED OF POISON

Umatilla county livestock owners received a warning from the county court last week that poisonous sodium chlorate has been distributed along roadways to kill weeds, and that livestock should not be allowed to graze along the roads. "The county court is treating all the noxious weeds on country roadways throughout Umatilla county," said the announcement. "Therefore, livestock owners allowing cattle to graze on the road right-of-ways are doing so at their own risk."

A. F. OF L. RENEWS ENDORSEMENT OF CONSUMER COOPERATIVES

HUSTON, Texas.—The American Federation of Labor, meeting here for its annual convention October 3 to 14, renewed its endorsement of Consumer Cooperatives as a "way of protecting working men from price exploitation and helping them to secure quality goods at reasonable prices" and declared that "if the cooperative movement is to become a vital force in our national life it must go hand and hand with trade union organization."

Joseph Jones, president of the Miners Federation of Great Britain and fraternal delegate from the British Trades Union Congress, emphasized the importance of consumer cooperatives when he told the convention: "In Great Britain we have recognized to the full how powerful an ally in the attainment of higher standards the cooperative movement can be. The cooperative movement has proved that a way of order can be carved out of existing contradictory economic systems. In sharp contrast to the totalitarian system it aims at serving the community on the basis of liberty, justice, democracy and the elimination of unearned wealth. This explains its phenomenal growth in Great Britain. Beginning in 1844 on the simple equitable system whereby profits on sales are distributed to members in proportion to their purchases it has reached a membership of nearly 8,000,000. Its retail trade exceeds $235,000,000 which is about one-eighth of Britain's total retail trade."

The resolution renewing its endorsement of the Consumers Cooperative Movement was presented to the convention by the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. and reads in part as follows:

"The past year has been a time of growing sales volume in consumers cooperatives in the United States and of growing interest in cooperatives on the part of trade unions. The sales of six leading cooperative wholesalers, which supply products to retail cooperatives, increased 22 per cent in 1937 as compared with 1936. It is significant that such an increase should have occurred in a year when serious business recession reduced sales in business generally in the last quarter and when wholesale trade in general increased its volume by only 12 per cent and retail trade by only 5 percent."

"Consumer's cooperatives when efficiently operated may perform an essential service for union members by protecting them from price exploitation and helping them to secure quality goods at reasonable prices. We wish, however, to reiterate the warnings given in our reports of last year, that all local labor groups undertaking cooperative enterprise adhere closely to Rochdale principles and make sure that their cooperative is capably managed and that sound business principles and practices are followed. We urge them to keep in touch with the branch offices of the Cooperative League of the USA and to make use of the assistance offered by cooperative wholesalers which are members of the league."

OHIO CO-OP EXECUTIVE ELECTED TO BOARD OF COOPERATIVE LEAGUE

(Co-op League News Service) NEW YORK—Perry L. Green, president of the Farm Bureau Cooperative association, Columbus, Ohio, which serves 82 county-wide cooperative associations in Ohio, was elected to the board of directors of

The Cooperative League of the U.S. A. at the closing session of the Cooperative League Congress in Kansas City, October 14. Mr. Green's name was omitted from the list of directors published immediately following the Congress.
