MAC MURRAY, MILLAND CAMPBELL, HEAD "MEN WITH WINGS" CAST

Three of the screen's leading young personalities, Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland and Louise Campbell, playing together for the first time, head the cast of the new Technicolor cavalcade of the air, "Men With Wings" which opens Sunday at the Oasis theatre.

As the dramatic story of "Men With Wings" unfolds, the three friends are carried forward in the torrential surge of aviation's progress. The outcome of flying's struggle for life at the opening of the century means success or failure to them. The World War, when the machine they have built threatens to destroy civilization itself, means life and death. Swept along by a force they cannot even explain, they rush on through the boom days of the twenties, with Miss Campbell vainly trying to choose between the two types of birdmen — the courageous plane-builder Milland and the devil-may-care flier MacMurray. The turbulent thirties bring new heartaches and new triumphs to the trio, but they never lose the pioneer's passionate devotion to the progress of aviation. A New York State horticulturist says that "averages from farm cost accounts over a period of years indicate that where soil and climate conditions are favorable, apples have been one of the most profitable crops grown."

Did you know?

—How ripe olives compare with green olives as regarding food values? Green olives are really a relish, while the ripe olives are classed as a regular food item. The ripe olive contains from 20 to 25% oil while green olives contain only about 8% oil.
