GARDEN CLUB CHATS

The next meeting is April 17, and the guest speaker will be Mrs. Geo. Mitchell from the field station, out of Pendleton. She will talk on "Shrubbery in Home Beautification," and those who have visited the field station know that she is well qualified to speak on this subject.

We can have shrubs in bloom throughout the growing season. They are useful as well as beautiful and cut down work by their substitution for a portion of garden flowers, so Mrs. Mitchell's subject should be one of interest to club members, and to guests who will be welcome. The president has extended an invitation to members of the Umatilla, Stanfield and Echo clubs to be here to hear Mrs. Mitchell.

Clean-up day is April 14. The captain in charge of your street will contact you and tell you just how much work you have to do as your share in this cooperative effort for town improvement.

While your iris are in bloom, note the blooming dates of each variety. Carry a bloom to clumps of tulips and other flowers which are in bloom. Study and jot down in your notebook the most effective combinations. After the iris have finished blooming, reset some of the plants to bring about the desired picture.

For tall bearded iris, if fertilizers are needed, use bonemeal. Lime is beneficial to this variety. Manure should not be used about the tall bearded iris, but neither lime nor bonemeal should be used about Japanese or Siberian iris.

Phlox likes rich soil. Plant in a sunny location and give plenty of fertilizer. Commence in spring and spray once a week with some good prepared mixture. Keep faded flowers from the tall perennial phlox or the seedlings may choke out the original species. —BH&G

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Cannas like a sunny position and sandy, rich soil. Keep faded flowers removed. Lilies resent being moved after becoming established. BH&G

If variety is the spice of life the gardener's life lately has been well-seasoned. Eighty degrees one day, 22 another and a few healthy winds, leave us somewhat dazed.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

When you work in your garden, does meal-time "sneak up on you?" Set your alarm clock, put in on the window sill and it will tell you when to quit and put on the potatoes.

"Your garden is a living room, with a blue sky ceiling, a green grass carpet and walls of living green with accents of flowers."

METHODIST CHURCH SERVICES ENJOYED

A very fine congregation was present for the Easter Sunday service at the Methodist church, to hear the message of the day. The atmosphere of the service was greatly helped by the completion of the new chancel, and by a fresh coat of kalsomine which has brightened the interior. A number of lilies and other spring flowers added much to the enjoyment of all.

In the evening, another fine crowd turned out to see the presentation of the dramatic "Challenge of the Cross" given by the Epworth League.

Next Sunday the morning message will be "After Easter, What?" At the close of the service the quarterly communion service will be observed. A cordial welcome is extended to all to these services.
