COUNTY TESTER ISSUES REPORT

A total of 346 cows were enrolled in the Umatilla-Morrow Dairy Herd Improvement association during April, according to the monthly report just issued by H. R. Hartley, tester. A total of 216,420 pounds of milk, containing 9,349 pounds of butterfat was produced by 291 cows, the remaining 55 being dry. Average production for the month including cows in milk and cows dry was 625.5 pounds of milk and 27.02 pounds of fat.

Dell Christley's herd of mixed breeds showed the highest production for the month in herds of 20 or more cows. His 27 head produced an average of 34.78 lbs. of fat. Happy Thot Jersey farm led in production in herds of 12 to 20 cows. These 16 head of grade and registered Jerseys produced an average of 31.61 lbs. of fat per cow for the month. The Charles Lynch herd of 10 grade Holsteins produced an average of 6.06 lbs. of fat for the month.

With the decline in butterfat prices it is becoming increasingly important for dairymen to test for butterfat production, states Mr. Hartley. Low producing cows cannot be detected by the owners without a complete record of their production and feed costs. Many herds are not making as great a profit for their owners as is possible, because of these boarder cows.

STRAWBERRIES ARE HERE AGAIN

One of the many reasons for praising the month of May is that it brings in the season for strawberries. Luscious, scarlet strawberries, their delicious flavor pepping up appetites and their color adding interest and variety.

Since the season for strawberries is never long enough we are justified in serving them often—every day in fact—and enjoy them with all their garden freshness. Although the nutrition value of strawberries, which is chiefly in the juice, is not high, their delicious and refreshing flavor more than makes up for their lack of food elements. The sugar and cream added to them, of course, makes up for some of this deficiency in essential elements.

Strawberries should be a favorite with busy cooks as most persons consider any fancy treatment of them superfluous. Favorites are the simplest dishes—strawberries and plenty of good thick cream and strawberry shortcake piled high with whipped cream.

And we like strawberries in other ways too. Fresh strawberry ice cream or fully ripened berries crushed, slightly sweetened and spooned over vanilla ice cream will make even the most ordinary meal a memorable one.

Strawberries added to fruit salads or cocktails or just used as garnishes in either case, will make them more colorful and interesting in flavor, too. And what could be more tempting to a child, or grownup for that matter, than a cool fresh strawberry milk shake with its lovely pink color. These can be made at home and will be a change from the regular glass of milk served with the child's meal. It is simple to make too.

WHEAT FARMER HAS NEW PROBLEM

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of six articles by the Umatilla County Agricultural Conservation association explaining aims of the 1939 farm program and how it hopes to aid wheat conditions.)

Umatilla county farmers agree that an ideal condition would be one in which they would be able to raise all the wheat they could, always getting a good price for it. During some past years, they have been able to do that but conditions aren't the same any more. The wheat farmer faces new conditions.

United States, during the last several years, has been raising more wheat than it could sell. If farmers raise an unlimited amount now, they are only adding to the huge pile of surplus wheat.

The bigger the surplus pile becomes, the lower the price goes. The law of supply and demand brings that result. Agriculture faces an odd situation—it is possible that the harder a farmer works, the less money he gets.

There are three principal reasons for the changed conditions now facing the wheat grower:

(1) The World War encouraged big production, in Umatilla county as well as elsewhere. There has been a tendency to keep this extra acreage in production.

(2) New machinery made wheat growing on a big scale easier, and has helped stimulate production.

(3) Foreign markets have decreased. Nations across the sea are growing much more of their own wheat, and buying less from United States.

Oregon, along with the Pacific Northwest and the entire nation, feels the effect of these changed conditions. In Oregon, as elsewhere, farmers have continued to grow large amounts of wheat at the same time their markets were being cut off. Surpluses were bound to accumulate.

Between 1928 and 1938, wheat farmers in the United States planted an average of 67 million acres. In 1938, this had been increased to 80 million acres. This year, the wheat farmers—cooperating through the agricultural adjustment program—are attempting to cut this down to approximately 55 million acres, which would supply all the nation's needs for both export and home consumption.

Between 1928 and 1938, wheat farmers in Oregon planted an average of 1,046,000 acres. In 1938, this had been increased to 1,113,000 acres. This year, they are cooperating to bring this down to a more desirable 768,000 acres.

The average acreage planted to wheat for harvest by the Umatilla county farmers has been approximately 252,000 acres. This year they are cooperating to bring this down to 195,000 acres, believed their proper share of wheat acreage in Oregon.

To grow any more wheat than can be sold means growing a surplus. The new point of view is that surplus wheat is an economic waste—it wastes both labor and soil fertility.

FARM BUREAU MUTUAL AUTO INSURANCE COMPANY ENDS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

(Co-op League News Service)
Columbus, Ohio—The Farm Bureau Auto Insurance Company, the largest auto insurance cooperative in the United States and fifth largest mutual in the country, closed its year of operations with premium income 39.8 per cent above that of 1937; with assets totaling $5,397,000; surplus and voluntary reserves of $1,794,000, an increase of 38.7 per cent. The ratio of assets to liabilities advanced from 1.29 at the close of 1937 to 1.49 at the close of the year.

Murray D. Lincoln, formerly secretary-treasurer of the co-op, was elected president to succeed the late George L. Cooley, founder of the Ohio Farm Bureau.

For the first time in its history a representative of urban consumer members was elected to the board of directors when L. E. Woodcock, manager of the Eastern Cooperative Wholesale, New York, was named as member of the board of the Farm Bureau Mutual Auto Insurance cooperative at its annual meeting here April 5 and 6. Last year the Farm Bureau Mutual started writing auto insurance policies in New York State under the sponsorship of the Eastern Cooperative Wholesale. Mr. Lincoln, in commenting on the election, pointed out that the election of Mr. Woodcock will be of benefit to members in all nine states because it brings to the board a person closely identified with urban consumer cooperatives and familiar with the problems of the increasingly large proportion of non-farmer policy holders.

Mr. Woodcock, as treasurer of The Cooperative League of the U. S. A., the educational federation of consumer cooperatives, will also bring to the organization a healthy emphasis on continuous educational activity, Mr. Lincoln said. Other new directors elected at the annual meeting were: E. M. Shaulis, Somerset, Pa., of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Cooperative Ass'n and W. E. Stough and George Dunlap, both of the Ohio Farm Bureau cooperatives. The annual conventions of the Farm Bureau Mutual Fire Insurance Company and the Farm Bureau Life Insurance Co. were held at the same time. More than 1,000 policy holders and agents of the insurance cooperatives which serve nine states and the District of Columbia were in Columbus for the convention.

The local Townsend club is receiving word of the progress of the bill at various intervals which are reported at the club meetings.
