

Only Native Sporting Dog

The Chesapeake Bay Retriever is the only native American sporting dog. His parents sailed from England, however, and therein lies a story. More than 100 years ago, says the American Wildlife Institute, an English brig was wrecked off the coast of Maryland. The crew and cargo and two Newfoundland puppies, a male and female, were rescued by an American ship. These dogs proved wonderful retrievers. They were bred with the Maryland hounds and, through years of breeding and cross breeding, there emerged what we know as the Chesapeake Bay Retriever. By 1888 there had been developed a type of dog which often retrieved more than 200 ducks a day in the icy, rough waters of Chesapeake bay, but that, of course, was a long time ago.

The Leaning Tower of Pisa

The Leaning Tower of Pisa is built in the Romanesque style. It is cylindrical and in eight stages, which at the base are solid with a wall arcade, the six above being surrounded within their small-columned arcades with galleries. The highest stage has six large arches to allow the sound of the bells to escape. The tower is 181 feet high and 5 1/2 feet in diameter at the base. It is inclined 13 feet 8 inches toward the south. About one-half of the sinking took place during construction.

Lighthouses Following a Bet

Everyone knows the amount of good done by our lighthouses, but how many know that but for a strange bet we would never have had any? In 1770 a scientist bet a friend that he would read a newspaper by the light of a farthing candle at 30 feet—a seemingly impossible task. Taking a wooden box, he lined the inside with mirrors so arranged as to form a concave lens. He then put the candle in position and, by its magnified light read his paper. From that bet came our modern lighthouses.

Towns Named With Numbers

Several American towns are named with numbers, such as Six, West Virginia; Seventy Six, Kentucky, and Ninety Six, South Carolina. A species of fish in South Africa, states a correspondent in Collier's Weekly, is named Seventy-four after the 74 guns on Nelson's flagship, the Victory; and a toilet water is named 4711 after the street address in Cologne, Germany, where it was first compounded.

FIRST GASOLINE SHIPMENT ARRIVES AT UMATILLA

gallons are now under construction, or grounds being prepared for the development. In addition to the large tank into which gasoline was loaded Tuesday, the Standard Oil company has completed two smaller tanks. The Union Oil company has two large tanks under construction. One will hold 630,000 gallons and the second 480,000, and a third is planned. Nearby the Texaco company is preparing ground for three similar tanks, and the Richfield Oil company has also definitely arranged for similar storage, and work is to be commenced at an early date. It is also rumored that the Associated Tidewater company and the Shell Oil company will install large tanks.

The generally discussed plan is to transport all gasoline from tidewater by boat and barge to Umatilla, that is destined to supply particularly all points along the old Oregon Trail to Boise and farther points east, and to take all oil trucks off the Columbia river highway doing such work between Portland and The Dalles to these eastern destinations. Petroleum supplies will also be trucked from Umatilla to eastern Washington, and north Idaho, from Umatilla and southeastern Oregon points.

It is reported that nearly a quarter of a million dollars will be spent in Umatilla for the new facilities.

DISTRICT BIBLE CONFERENCE SLATED FOR NEXT WEEK

Bible Institute was erected on a campus of fifteen acres. The second unit has now been completed, making possible the housing of a faculty and student body of approximately five hundred. In addition to the Central Bible Institute of Springfield, Missouri, other Bible schools have been opened in various parts of the country, those on the Pacific coast being the Northwest Bible Institute, Seattle, Wn.; Glad Tidings Bible Institute, San Francisco; and Southern California Bible School, Pasadena. The curriculum of these schools includes English, Greek, Church History, Sunday School Organization, etc., but special emphasis is given to a thorough study of the Bible itself as of primary importance.

In August of 1938 it was ascertained that the affiliated churches had grown to 3,580, with an enrolled membership of 197,228. The list of ministers shows that there are now 3,388 ordained ministers, approximately 2500 licentiates, and 700 exhorters.

The character of the Assemblies of God fellowship was described recently by a Presbyterian minister as "early Wesleyan." There is this difference, however, that the Assemblies of God teach, not only the necessity of the new birth and the need of personal holiness, but also the privilege of a personal baptism in the Holy Spirit with Pentecostal fullness.
