

OWNERSHIP

History teaches that ownership is the thing which in every age has determined human destiny. Those who own, control. It has always been true. Consumer cooperation by constantly expanding ownership of business is laying the foundation for true economic and political democracy.

The cooperative system enables the consumer to own and control the business which furnishes him with goods and services. There can be no more effective protection against exploitation.

Come in. Ask the management any questions about the cooperative way. Your membership is earnestly solicited.

GARDEN CLUB CHATS

By Mrs. Thomas O'Grady

A graceful arrangement made from flowers grown in our own yard is the crowning glory of the garden. There can be nothing like a few spring flower arrangements in the house to take away the feel of winter and remind one that the world is once more clothed in a fresh new green garment. However, cutting a few flowers and thrusting them into the first glass or jar that is handy, does not bring out the beauty in them and is much less than they deserve. One does not need to be technical but there are a few simple fundamental principles which will help make even an arrangement of weeds a thing of beauty.

One of the first things to decide where the arrangement is to be used. If it is to be placed on a small occasional table then the arrangement and container should be small and low. If the flowers are to be used on the buffet or living room table then the container chosen could be larger. If the flowers to be arranged are of the more coarse type, such as marigolds or zinnias a container of brass, copper or pottery would be appropriate, but if more delicate flowers such as cosmos, larkspurs, columbine are to be used then crystal, pewter or silver would be more pleasing.

All authorities suggest that we have a plan or design in mind before starting to arrange the flowers. This design should take into consideration the space to be filled or in other words the frame in which this picture made with flowers instead of paints, is to be placed.

These few basic principles, if combined with a sense of proportion and color harmony, plus the most important points in perfection of arrangement which will be given next week as listed by the National Council of State Garden clubs, are all that is needed to start anyone who is interested, on their way to getting more pleasure and beauty from the flowers they grow.

Next meeting May 10th., but we hope to see everyone at the Second Annual Flower show in the high school gymnasium Saturday afternoon from 3 to 10 o'clock, April 27. There is no admission fee and every one is welcome.

APRIL IS CHILD WELFARE MONTH

Interest of the American Legion Auxiliary is centered this month on the welfare of America's children, according to Mrs. Wm. E. Logan, child welfare chairman of Hermiston Unit of the Auxiliary. Child welfare activities are being emphasized by the Auxiliary's 9200 units, which are making plans for further development of this work that is bringing aid to many thousands of needy children each year.

"The Auxiliary, of course, is interested primarily in the welfare of the children of the dead and disabled World War veterans", said Mrs. Logan, "but we have found that we can not promote the welfare of veterans' children unless we serve for the welfare of all children. Our direct aid is mainly for the children of veterans, yet our efforts are accomplishing much to bring health, happiness and opportunity to a vast number of children outside of veterans' families. 'A square deal for every child', is our motto. We give our active cooperation to all sound movements having this goal. Our support is behind legislation to safeguard childhood. We work to bring the benefits of new legislation to the children.

PHILANDER BISHOP

Philander Bishop passed away at his home in Irrigon, April 20, at the age of 85 years. Mr. Bishop was an early pioneer of the West, coming from Nebraska to Dayton, Wn., by way of the Columbia river boat and the narrow gauge railroad then in use.

He was married to Harriet Rosalia Walker, daughter of Judge Walker, an early pioneer of Walla Walla county. To this union were born four daughters. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alma Greaves of Irrigon, and one granddaughter of Chelan, Wn.

Mr. Bishop has made Irrigon his permanent home for the past 27 years. He was a kindly man and those who knew him were made richer by his acquaintance.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Soneson, who are buried in the Echo cemetery. Some day we'll understand.
