Farm Engineering Course Offered to Youths Here

National Foundation Announces Free Scholarships Are Now Available

At least ten free scholarships for the study of farm management and engineering will be awarded to farm youths in this vicinity.

the home field is the goal of the Foundation," says (name of dealer). Farm youths in the past have looked for opportunity elsewhere. Many

The scholarships, available to young men between the ages of 18 and 25 who are actually engaged in farm work, will consist of home study course, together with practical training and experience under local farm conditions. They are provided by the National Farm Youth Foundation, which has been created by the Ferguson-Sherman Manufacturing Corporation of Dearborn, Michigan, with the active co-operation of Henry Ford and Edsel Ford.

"Young men of the farm have not realized their opportunities on the home soil," said Henry Ford in announcing his participation in the Foundation. "As a result, many of them have left the farm.

"The family system of farming has suffered and we want to see it re-built. As a matter of fact, the Foundation seeks to help the young man of the farm to realize his aspirations for happiness and prosperity.

"I am told that eighty per cent of the graduates of agricultural colleges have been going to the towns and cities for their careers instead of returning to the farm. The remaining 20 per cent are not enough to give the farm the needed leadership in agricultural progress.

"Better farming methods today will mean better farms tomorrow and rural youth will be more inclined to stay close to the soil."

Young men enrolled under these scholarships also will compete for salaried jobs with the sponsoring company and its distributors. One student will be selected from this section to work at the factory for a year at a salary of $150 a month. He will be given specialized training in the use, application and the maintenance of the tractor and its equipment. Second award in this general area is a job with the distributor at $125 a month. Additional students will be placed in jobs as quickly as possible, with the eventual aim of giving them training and experience which they may bring to bear on future problems in their own community.

Success for local young men in could not finance a college education. Others found funds lacking to set up in farming for themselves. "Even those who have gone to college have not found in local fields the opportunity they sought," he added. "Most of these boys wind up in towns and cities. If this movement can be halted the community will benefit by the training and education its own young men are receiving and will receive in the future."

Announcement of the scholarships was accompanied by the explanation that the Foundation does not conflict nor compete with the splendid work being done by the 4-H Clubs and the Smith-Hughes vocational agriculture high schools. Through its higher age limit it affords opportunity for study and advancement to farm youths who have already passed the age at which the activities of the organizations mentioned are available.

Young men, to be eligible for scholarships, must be between the ages already given, and must be American citizens, of good character, and actually work on a farm. Young men wishing to apply for enrollment or to secure more detailed information about the scholarships may do so by getting in touch with Shopping for low cost insurance is about as sensible as an aviator saving money buying a tissue paper parachute. If he has to use it, nothing but the best is good enough. If he knew he would never need it, he would get along without it entirely.

You don't know what is going to happen. The safe thing to do is to let the agent of your local insurance agency give you real, intelligent insurance protection in a sound stock company, fitted exactly to your own need. Then you will be safe if the unexpected happens. Capital stock company insurance is standard protection.

NATIONAL FARM YOUTH FOUNDATION

The men who are responsible for the Ford tractor have established this Foundation to make a new kind of opportunity available to young men living or working on the farm.

Those who are selected as Members of the Foundation will receive, without obligation, a specially prepared course in Farm Engineering and Management conducted by La Salle Extension University. This course is complete and authoritative, and if regularly sold, would be priced at $136.

But in addition, members will receive regular class training under our personal guidance, and will also be given the opportunity to gain practical experience in sales and demonstration work.

This education and training is invaluable. But in addition, the Foundation will award two salaried jobs to young men in this general area, as well as other desirable awards.

The whole story of this unusual opportunity is told in the book, A New Career. We have a copy for you. Come in and get it, tomorrow, and let us tell you more about the Foundation. Do not delay, because our training class starts soon.
