

FARM CO-OPERATIVE DIVISION

A MESSAGE TO EVERY MEMBER.

R.E.A. HIGHLIGHTS

BY R. L. WOOLLEY

The City of Boardman and its new distribution system was energized Monday, June 3. There are now some 29 additional users participating in the benefits of our co-operative organization. It was impossible to set meters for all of these new members due to lack of time. However, on Tuesday the remaining meters were set and all of the final construction details were completed. We of the operating personnel wish to congratulate you upon this, the inauguration of your new service, and we pledge ourselves to render the best service possible.

It was unfortunate that there was an interruption so soon after energizing. It was unavoidable, however, due to weather conditions and service was resumed as quickly as possible. Those of you in the vicinity of Boardman can help us maintain your service better if, when you have an interruption for some reason, you will notify Mr. Chaffee at the telephone office in Boardman. He in turn may call our office collect. This method of handling will help in several ways. It will eliminate a toll call for each of you; it will hold the expense to your cooperative at a minimum; and it will allow us to be informed providing you call as soon as the interruption occurs.

You must remember that we do not know of the interruption in service until you notify us. Therefore, be prompt in the matter and give us an opportunity to help you.

The attention of our outside plant people will now be given to the construction of other small additions and to providing facilities for increased service in the many places where the members are now requiring it.

Let us continue to progress together.

OREGON HAS BEST WHEAT MARKET RECORD IN N.W.

Statistical maps issued recently by the U.S. department of agriculture show Oregon in an enviable position as regards elimination of smut in wheat shipped to market and in reduction of mixed variety shipments.

In 1939 crop shipments from Oregon there were only 22 cars of mixed wheat compared with 225 in Washington and 141 in Idaho. From the same crop only 30 cars graded as smutty from Oregon compared with 238 from Washington and 205 from Idaho.

Seed certification and varietal standardization, long emphasized in Oregon, together with introduction of smut resistant varieties by the experiment station and effective work by extension men in getting both these and seed treatment used, are having their effect in better market returns, says G. R. Hyslop, head of the farm crops department at O.S.C.

"BLITZKRIEG" OF 4-H BOYS, GIRLS AWAITED AT OSC

A peaceful invasion, although a veritable blitzkrieg of boys and girls, is impending for the Oregon State college campus as some 2000 members of Oregon's 4-H clubs converge on the campus for the opening of the twenty-sixth annual 4-H club summer session June 10. The session will continue to Friday, June 21.

The "invaders" will reach the campus by special trains, busses, and private cars. The largest special will start from La Grande at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning, and will pick up delegates along the route as it proceeds west to Portland. There it will take on the Clatsop and Columbia delegations, as well as those from Portland, and, growing as it continues up the valley, the special will pull into Corvallis that evening with 1200 to 1300 aboard.

A smaller special will come from Klamath and Lake counties, while the boys and girls from southern Oregon points west of the Cascades will reach Corvallis by bus.

Last year total attendance at the session reached 1975 and, while the attempt was made this year to have approximately the same number, indications are that the total may go slightly over 2000, says H. C. Seymour, state club leader in the O.S.C. extension service. All dormitory facilities on the campus, as well as 30 fraternity and sorority houses, will be used to provide accommodations for the clubbers.

The usual daily schedule will be followed, with mornings devoted to classes, early afternoon to auditorium programs, and the remainder of the day to recreation. Approximately 100 classes have been arranged and 250 adult leaders, extension workers, and instructors will be used in running the session, which is the largest two-week club session held anywhere in the United States.

State officials and agricultural leaders will be heard daily by the visitors in the assembly programs.

SEED PRODUCERS TURN HANDICAPS TO GOOD PROFITS

Seeds and tourists are two crops that respond well to Oregon's cool summers, said E. R. Jackman, extension agronomist at O.S.C., in discussing the growth of the seed industry in this state.

"The cool days and cooler nights in Oregon, while not good for some crops, are ideal for seed production," said Jackman. "They make the seed ripen slowly and give it a plumpness and weight unknown in the middle west."

"The dry summers, also a disadvantage in some respects, are just right for seed crops as rain at harvest time is the greatest single danger to seed so far as appearance is concerned. Sunny harvest weather here gives our seed the brightness and luster so prized by the buyers. Boys are still marrying the girls that look good to them and people buy seed the same way."

Jackman added that Oregon farmers, who now devote well over a quarter million acres to seed production, have turned so-called handicaps to advantage in the seed business. Added to the two climatic factors mentioned is the great distance from market the Oregon growers must face. Seed is perhaps the best farm crop when it comes to being able to withstand high freight rates.

Oregon's highly varied climate has also been put to use as a means of producing a wide range of seed. Nearly every kind of seed likes a little different growing conditions, and all can be satisfied in Oregon, from coast conditions for bent grass to the Columbia basin for crested wheat and other dry land grasses.

"With the help of experiment stations, by trial and error and their own willingness to gamble, Oregon farmers have learned how to grow and harvest these many seed crops," said Jackman. "Dealers have aided by installing thousands of dollars worth of cleaning machinery, and the entire industry has advertised their superior products to build markets."

STANDARD OIL OFFERS WESTERN SCENIC VIEWS

"Nine million color reproductions of outstanding western scenic views will be distributed free to western motorists and families in the next few months by Standard Oil company of California," states Sam Moore of the company here today.

"This is the greatest single printing of scenic pictures ever undertaken in the west, and probably in the United States," Mr. Moore said. All pictures will be distributed through service stations and garages handling Standard Oil products to motorists calling at the stations and requesting them. No one is required to buy anything. Pictures available in each locality will be of scenes within reasonable distance. The first picture in the series, a brilliant full-color reproduction of Columbia River Gorge is now being distributed by local Standard service men.

In this, the enterprise has the hearty endorsement and support of national park service officials.
