

THANKS!

Your management wishes to thank you members and customers who by your patronage have enabled the Co-op store to show a 23% gain in volume for the 2nd three month period of this year over the 1st period. This is also a more than 27% gain over the second period of 1939. This gain has been reflected in a very substantial net saving and improved financial condition of the store since the store expenses were not increased.

Keep up the good work. It will pay you well to support your own store. Cooperation really pays if properly supported and efficiently operated.

GARDEN CLUB CHATS

By Mrs. Thomas O'Grady
We have just read an editorial by Morris S. Shipley, editor of the Garden Digest, and it is so timely we quote it in hope that others may derive inspiration from it too.

Peace In Your Garden
"Fortunate indeed is he who has a garden and works it himself! For gardening, the planting of seed, the nurturing of young plants so that they produce their best flowers, the very contact with the soil itself, is food for both body and spirit."

"Work in your garden yourself! Work hard enough to get tired. When you go to bed at night you will have restful, untroubled sleep and wake the next morning refreshed and ready for whatever problems the day presents."

"Work your garden intelligently and concentrate on producing not just flowers, but the best flowers your plants are capable. You will be amazed at how the worries and problems of the day fade into the background and are forgotten."

"Grow your flowers not just for yourself, but for others who can not or do not grow their own. Bring joy to your friends through the beauty of your flowers and so bring added joy to yourself."

"The old phrase about communing with nature has been much overworked but who can fail to get at least temporary release from the worries of a war weary world while working in one's garden?"

"In other words, garden whole heartedly, for the love of your work, and for the beauty which your handiwork may bring to this troubled world. You will receive big dividends in health of body, mind and spirit."

During July and early August is the proper time to propagate spirea, deutzia, buddlea, weigela, or the viburnums, including the snowball. One of the lower branches may be pegged down and left well covered with damp earth, for roots to form.

If you have an Anthony Waterer spirea and will keep the small pink flower heads cut off when they are past their best, new ones will be put forth all summer.

The next regular meeting will be July 26. Please come and help to make plans for the new club year. Hermiston needs the Garden Club, and the club needs you.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of Hermiston and surrounding territory for the many congratulations offered us during our formal opening Saturday. We especially thank those who presented floral offerings for the occasion as they were greatly appreciated.

'Talented' Frog Will Chirp In Tune With Radio Music

Outdoing the pig and his squeal, it may now be said of the frog that even his croak is of interest to ingenious man. Frog experts, advocating the musical talents of such pets, point out that the cricket frog will often tune up and perform with chirps, along with your favorite radio program.

"As a familiar item of diet," adds the National Geographic society, "frog legs long have made a nutritious and palatable food. Modern experiments with adrenalin-producing glands of the toad indicate that the evil tasting poisons which amateur doctors once made up from frog and other secretions were less fantastic than it would seem."

From some species have come poisonous substances used in tipping the arrows of South American Indians, while other Indians use this same frog in dyeing parrots' feathers to increase the value and salability of their jungle birds. Most recent use in the United States was reported from style centers, as women's novelty frog skin shoes appeared. The skins were obtained from giant species found in Brazil. In the Far East, such skins were already familiar in purses and belts.

Not often mentioned is another valuable service which the frog performs for the benefit of mankind. As insect eaters they eliminate pests, such as the sugar beet webworm, that might otherwise destroy crops.

Early Explorer's Route Is Traced by Experts

A party of historical experts, using a specially constructed, high-axle automobile, is traveling across northern Mexico to find the place where Francisco Vasquez de Coronado first set foot on American soil some 400 years ago.

The site, when found, will mark the spot where a $10,000 Coronado memorial will be constructed by the Coronado Cuarto-Centennial commission, which is financing the trip.

No one, not even members of the expedition, cared to predict how long the investigation might require. Most of the route is over nearly impassable trails and unmarked desert. In some spots pack mules will be used.

Members of the Coronado commission decided to erect the Coronado memorial on the United States-Mexico boundary, but complications set in when they tried to find the right spot.

Residents of Douglas, Ariz., believe Coronado and his conquistadores journeyed up the San Pedro valley, through Douglas, while citizens of Nogales assert the explorer went up through their Santa Cruz valley. The cities are about 75 miles apart, both on the international boundary.

English 'Hocus Pocus'

A collection of nearly 20,000 books and pamphlets of magic and the supernatural has been installed in the University of London library. One of the books is that published in 1634 and bearing the title, "Hocus Pocus Junior: the Anatomie of Leg-erdmain; or the Art of Jugling." It was the first book of its kind ever published in England. Among other exhibits are pieces of a Coptic paper dating back to the Sixth century and containing fragments of a potent magical formula; a description of a seance, believed to have been written by Oliver Goldsmith in 1762; and Ludwig Lavater's treatise in 1782, "De Spectris," what ponderous title reads: "Of ghosts and spirits walking by night, and of strange noises, crackles, and sundry warnynges, whiche commonly happen before the death of menne, great slaughters, and alteration of kyngdomes."

Michigan-Texas Hospitality

It cost John Halmer of Pontiac, Mich., $700 to prove to a visiting Texan that Michigan boasts hospitality of a type as good as that of Texas recently. Halmer, standing on the street, was approached by the Texan who complained Michigan people were lacking in hospitality—he couldn't find any entertainment, poker games and such. As they talked another man came up and asked for a match. Soon the group was enlarged by another bystander and the four rented a hotel room and began playing poker. Halmer said he got four aces, four kings, and four queens among his first hands and had dug deeply into the Texan's $4,000 bankroll before he began to lose. The game ended with Halmer's savings of $700 gone. Mrs. Halmer said the money was being saved to buy a farm.

Cleaning Enameled Furniture

White enameled wooden furniture should not be washed with soap and water but cleaned with sifted whitening, applied with a slightly damp cloth. Wipe off with a piece of old, soft flannel wrung out of clear, cold water. Polish with a piece of old silk. Professional cleaning is best for white leather-covered furniture unless the articles are known to be washable. The only joy in white furniture or accessories is that they be white—so the whitening method is recommended for the paints that might turn yellow with soap and water, and a good bath with mild soap and warm water for the lamp bases, small boxes and other objects are known to be scrutable.

HENRY A. WALLACE

President Roosevelt's acceptance of an unprecedented third-term nomination was all but formally announced today through indirect white house designation of Henry A. Wallace, 51-year-old Iowan and secretary of agriculture, for the vice presidential place on the 1940 democratic ticket.

and Lake counties (closed all year by legislative enactment). Open pheasant season October 15 to 31 inclusive, except in Malheur and Harney counties. Malheur county open October 15 to November 15 inclusive; Harney county open only on October 19, 20, 23, 26, 27 and 30.

The entire state is closed all year for hunting sage and prairie chickens, and mountain or plumed quail. For valley or California quail, there is no change in laws for Eastern Oregon, but all counties closed to pheasant hunting in Western Oregon are also closed to quail hunting.

The deer season, set by legislative enactment, remains unchanged from September 20 to October 25, inclusive, except that most of the reserves have been thrown open to hunting. These are the Canyon Creek, Mule Deer, Myrtle Creek, Mount Emily, Ochoco, Steen's Mountain, and Warner (outside of limits of federal reserve) reserves. Canyon Creek will be reserved for bow and arrow hunters for the first two weeks of the hunting season.

INFANTILE DISEASE DOCTOR EXPLAINS

epidemics. You remember what a time we had in 1916. Like a lot of other things, good and bad, we got it from Europe. It started down around New York and sort of followed the main lines of travel: up the river and then west, across the state and so on. Along at first it was mostly in the larger places; then epidemics began popping up out on what you might call branch lines.

"During the epidemics we found out there were a lot of mild cases: 'abortive' cases, they used to call 'em—got well without any paralysis or so little it wouldn't be discovered. Ordinary times, when there wasn't any epidemic going on, cases like that might pass for gripe or most anything. Those early cases—of course, now we know they didn't just happen; the youngsters got it somewhere or from somebody else. I suppose maybe we had some of that kind of mild cases, that didn't get recognized. But why it got so much more catching there all of sudden—Guess we'd better leave that for the experts to explain—if they can.

"The cause of it—of course, we know it's a virus. Bacteria—you can see them, but a virus—well, it's some like indigestion: you can't see it but you can see the effects of it. But there are some things about the way it spreads they ain't got figured out yet. A lot of folks are working on it, though. I see here lately they've discovered it in sewage—this virus.

"There isn't any cure for this disease, not yet. The aftercare, though—that's the big thing: preventing deformities and helping 'em get back on their feet after they've been hit by it. Yes, sir. The right kind of after care—at the right time, it may make all the difference between their being hopeless cripples and useful citizens. Putting in our widow's mites, here awhile ago, that's going to help. It was a good thing for us, too, as well as the youngsters. It's kind of uplifting to feel unselfish once in a while—even if we ain't."—Paul B. Brooks.

In other words, the best thing any parent can do is keep his child from large gatherings, give him plenty of rest, guard against over-exertion and fatigue—and if anything suspicious develops, call a doctor immediately.
