UNSTABLE INCOME ON OREGON FARMS MAY FOLLOW 1941

Expected general improvement in farm purchasing power next year will probably be temporary even though prices of most farm products except those in the "export type" group are likely to be moderately higher, according to the current report on the agricultural situation issued by the O.S.C. extension service. The report reviews the general outlook in Oregon for farm income, costs and family living.

"Looking beyond 1941, the temporary improvement in the exchange value of farm products expected next year may be lost in 1942 or later, owing first to advances in the cost of farming and farm family living, likely to be followed by a more rapid decline in farm prices than in other prices when war and defense spending drops off," the report states.
