RATIO OF GRAIN PRICE TO BUTTER FAT FAVORS FEED

Current prices of feed grains compared with the present price of butterfat make it highly profitable to feed concentrates with alfalfa hay instead of feeding the hay alone to dairy cattle, according to a new bulletin just issued by the agricultural experiment station at O.S.C., entitled "Feeding Alfalfa Hay Alone and With Concentrates to Dairy Cows." This bulletin, No. 389, is considered particularly significant in connection with one recently published on surplus wheat feeding experiments in Oregon. The bulletin just issued shows in detail when it is profitable to feed concentrates of various prices with hay, while the bulletin on feeding shows that wheat, which has been priced at a feed grain level for some years, is a satisfactory grain for feeding dairy cows.

The new bulletin is by D. H. Sherwood and H. K. Dean, who conducted the experiments reported on at the branch experiment station at Hermiston. For three years they fed one group of grade cows alfalfa alone, while giving another group alfalfa plus grain. Although the cows receiving the grain averaged consistently higher production than those fed hay alone, the cost was justified only under certain relationships of butterfat prices, hay costs, and grain costs.

A table showing these relationships at a glance is included in the new bulletin. It shows, for example, that if hay is worth only $7 a ton and the concentrate costs $30 a ton, the butterfat must sell for at least 31.5 cents a pound before the extra feed is justified. On the other hand, with the concentrate costing only $20 a ton, or the same price at which wheat was figured for the wheat-feeding experiments, the feeding of concentrates with $7 hay is profitable any time butterfat is worth more than 19 1/2 cents a pound.

The wheat feeding experiments conducted at Corvallis showed that wheat can be used for up to 75 per cent of a standard concentrate mixture, with no adverse effect other than possible slight loss of palatability.

STANFIELD NEWS

By Mrs. Rose Hedrick

Masons Entertain Visitors
Stanfield Lodge No. 173, A. F. & A. M., was host to Masons from the neighboring towns of Echo, Hermiston and Umatilla last Thursday evening. Lodge was opened and closed, dispensing with all unnecessary business, after which lunch was served and a social evening enjoyed.

H. R. Wessell, Master of the Stanfield lodge, presided and Jess Arnold, Gerald White and Al Stevens, Masters of Echo, Hermiston and Umatilla Masons, were present with delegations from each lodge.

The Triple Link club sponsored a social Monday night at the lodge rooms and netted a good sum by a penny an inch for the waist measure of each member. A lot of games were played and refreshments were served by Mesdames Tillory, Berry and Isaackson.

The contract bridge club met Monday at the home of Mrs. Alan Ogren. Mrs. Ogren had high score.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ogren of Dupont, Wn., were week end visitors at the home of their son and wife here, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ogren.

The Girls' League netted $12 at their food sale last Saturday and the committee, Miss Lorna Gabriel and Miss Lena Bowman, feel grateful to all the patrons.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Russell are now at home at the Haggman residence. Mr. Russell has retired from selling insurance.

Visitors at the Leo Clark home over the week end were Mr. and Mrs. E. Hiatt and son of Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Masters and Gerald Masters, Lewis Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. Engle of Imbler.

The Ladies Aid, mothers and daughters, enjoyed an interesting session on March 7th with Mrs. Don Childs and Mrs. A. Winkle as hostesses. Mrs. Ila Rhea and Mrs. Will Reeves were in charge of the program. A sermonette on Idle Words was read and three appropriate readings for mother. Miss Esther Fredrickson and Billy Penney with Miss Phyllis Sires played Liebestraum and the Shepherdess, and Mrs. Winkle sang two tribute songs to mother. About 25 attended and the annual contest closed with the Gloomy Anns losers to the Polly Sunshine. They will then entertain March 21.

Mrs. J. W. Sturdivant from Parkdale and Claire Sturdivant are visitors here. Miss Marie Lane accompanied them and will finish the 8th grade here with her former pals after an absence of two months. She will reside with her mother at the Coet Rhea home.

Grandma Martin returned to Ukiah Saturday after a three weeks visit at the Marion Martin home.

It was learned that Dr. Bruce Baker of Stirling, Colo., was called to active service at Fort Sill, Okla. where he will be a First Lieut. doctor. His wife and son Jimmy have gone to San Francisco to live with an aunt for some time.

George McDermott, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McDermott, has recently signed up for six years in the U. S. navy and has been accepted.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rogers of Prescott, Wn., are the proud parents of a son since March 2. They have named him James Cass Rogers. They now have a Jim and Judy. Mrs. Rogers taught in the primary room here several years ago.

Miss JoAnn Leslie, teacher at Umatilla and former teacher here, visited friends here over the week end. She was the guest of Miss Marian Troyer and her mother.

Miss Lois Messenger visited her parents at Boardman over the week end.

A turkey dinner will be served at the Grange hall on Sunday, March 16, at 1:00 o'clock, according to Mrs. J. F. Rueber, chairman. Proceeds will send a 4-H clubber to the summer school session at Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Lane of Ogden, Utah, have moved their household furniture to the N. D. Bard residence on Coe Avenue. It has been recently remodelled and redecored for their coming. He is a government employee at the munition depot.

Mrs. Nanny Potenski has bought some lots on Dunn street. The Krause will begin construction on a new home for Mrs. Potenski soon.

The latest and yet the oldest thing seen on the streets of Stanfield today is Robert Christian taking a ride in his 1916 Saxon car.
