COMMEMORATE 35TH ANNIVERSARY OF FIRE & EARTHQUAKE

Thirty-five years ago this month, on April 18, 1906, the city of San Francisco was laid low by earth tremors and resultant fire. Today most everyone knows the story of the gallant and successful fight that city made to recover its place among the metropolises of the world.

To remember this fateful holocaust Chevrolet dealers last week dispatched a scout car to Golden Gate Park in San Francisco, where the last souvenir of the tragedy is enshrined, the famous "Portals of the Past".

Thousands of western visitors are expected to visit the portals, now the center of a beautiful frame of trees and shrubs, with the waters of a little lake to reflect their Ionic symmetry. On the morning of April 18, 1906, the columns were the front door of the A. N. Towne residence at the south west corner of California and Taylor Streets on Nob Hill. A specially designed gasoline service station now occupies the site of the home of Towne, who was vice-president and general manager of the Southern Pacific railroad for many years.

The portals remained alone after fire had swept over Nob Hill and destroyed all of the wooden palaces of the former Comstock Lode kings and of socially prominent San Franciscans. Transfer of the portals to Golden Gate Park was regarded by the rebuilding commission as symbolic of the spirit of San Francisco which was to rise from the ashes of complete destruction.

Recalling the dramatic events of the fire and earthquake, the Chevrolet scout party located an original copy of the newspaper issued on the day following the shock. It was the combined "Call-Chronicle-Examiner". Its appearance paid tribute to the resource of newspapermen and heartened the citizenry while the downtown area, from the Ferry Building to Van Ness Avenue, as a mass of flame.

Following is the lead paragraph of the historic story in the newspaper printed on Thursday, April 19, 1906:—

"Death and destruction have been the fate of San Francisco. Shaken by a tremor at 5:18 o'clock yesterday morning, the shock lasting 48 seconds, and scourged by flames that raged diametrically in all directions, the city is a mass of smouldering ruins. At six o'clock last evening the flames seemingly playing with increased vigor, threatened to destroy such sections as their fury had spared during the earlier portion of the day. Building their path in a triangular circuit from the start in the early morning, they jockeyed as the day waned, left the business section, which they had entirely devastated, and skipped in a dozen directions to the residence portions. As night fell they had made their way over into the North Beach section, and springing anew to the South they reached out along the shipping section down the Bay Shore, over the hills and across toward Third and Townsend Streets. Warehouses, wholesale houses, and manufacturing concerns fell in their path. This completed the destruction of the entire district known as the "South of Market Street". How far they are reaching to the South across the channel cannot be told as this part of the city is shut off from San Francisco papers."
