MORE EGGS TO BE ASKED OF FARMS TO MEET DEMANDS

A nation-wide drive to produce every egg possible from laying flocks this spring has just been announced at Washington, D. C. as a part of the program to increase the production of certain concentrated foods while holding down the output of staple export crops such as wheat, cotton and tobacco.

The program fits in well with the suggestions made throughout Oregon this spring by poultry specialists at Oregon State college, who recommended that egg producers hold their flocks to the maximum of present housing facilities, and that ample feed be used to insure maximum production. Neither the national nor state situation, however, warrants expansion in permanent new housing, according to Secretary of Agriculture Claud Wickard and the Oregon poultry specialists.

Eggs have been included among a few foods such as dairy products, pork, and chickens for meat, the production of which is to be encouraged for the next two years. These foods will be needed in increased amounts in this country as industrial payrolls are stepped up, and they are the easiest foods to export under the present program of American aid to nations resisting aggression.

While corn is the feed expected to be used in greatest volume in carrying out this program, wheat will receive the benefit throughout the western states particularly. Research carried on at Oregon State college in the last few years has shown that wheat is a suitable and even superior feed grain for all types of livestock. It already forms the chief ingredient of Oregon poultry feeds and the proportion of wheat can be increased whenever it is cheaper than other grains, according to tests made at O.S.C.

The Surplus Marketing administration has arranged to support the market on the types of food mentioned in order to maintain prices profitable to the producers. Average levels aimed at are eggs, 22c; pork, 89 per hundredweight; chickens, 15c per pound, and dairy products, basis of 31c per pound of butter—all prices figured at Chicago.

TIME IS AT HAND TO PLANT FOR FAIRS

Planting time brings to the farmers and gardeners of Oregon a reminder from Manager Leo G. Spitzbart to plan ahead to state fair time. In short, to plant some seeds with the avowed purpose of carrying off some of the cash awards in the fair's land products or grain shows.

The state fair premium list will be off the press shortly, and this will give in detail the long list of vegetables and other field crops which may be entered for the fair premiums. The premium list is free and may be obtained by dropping a card to the state fair office, Salem.

"We want the state fair land products show—fruits, vegetables, root crops and grains—to be a real credit to the state and to depict accurately the fertility of our soils and variety of our crops", Spitzbart says.
