Defending Our Frontiers

Work is progressing at the Ordnance Depot. The multitude of details are being organized into an orderly mechanism for action. A casual mind scarcely can realize what it is all about. The transformation of a desert plain into the numerous elements of a vast defense structure is no ordinary task.

When the government builds dams, years are required from the first engineer's stake to the last shovel of concrete. The Umatilla Ordnance Depot requires much engineering, miles of roads and railroads, housing and more housing, assembling of much heavy machinery, drilling of wells, access roads, telegraph, telephone and electric lines, gathering together and sorting out a long list of men capable of doing such work, collecting materials from near and far sources and waiting on factories and wholesalers, unwinding the red tape of government procedure, coordinating bureaus, and adapting a new program in a new area to the requirements of an arsenal of defense under conditions our country has never known.

The army officials, contractors, engineers and many others sent here to do this job are entitled to the highest praise for their progress to date, and the well laid plans toward a rapid completion. They are likewise entitled to the loyal support of the local communities, to the support of the people of the Pacific Northwest, which this arsenal will serve, and to the loyalty of county, municipal, state and federal organizations, the very life of which is involved in the effort of our government to protect our interior and our coast lines from the dangers which no power has yet been able to modify or destroy.

DEER SEASON AGAIN OPENS SEPTEMBER 20

Oregon's 1941 deer season will be at the same time this year as last, September 20 to October 25. The bag limit will be one mule deer or one blacktail deer, having not less than forked horns. This was decided by the Oregon State Game Commission at its June meeting.

A limited doe season was decided upon in two sections in order to cut down the overconcentration of deer.

A total of 3,000 tags will be sold at $2.00 each for does in all of Grant county and a small portion of Wheeler and part of Crook counties.

In the Freemont area located in Klamath and Lake counties 800 doe deer tags will be sold.

A total of 3,000 tags will be sold for antelope shooting from September 28 to October 5, both dates inclusive. Antelope territory is included in Lake, Malheur and Harney counties. In southern Malheur county the antelope season has been set from September 22 through October 5 in order to conform with the Idaho season in this district, where a heavy concentration of antelope exists.

Applications for the special doe deer and antelope tags will be filled in the order received beginning on August 1. Any applications sent in prior to that time will be held and considered with those received on August 1.

In northeastern Oregon the elk season will be from November 1 to November 16. In this area each hunter will be entitled to one elk of either sex, and the $5.00 tag provided under legislative enactment will be good for either a bull or cow elk.

In western Oregon bull elk may be taken in Coos and Douglas counties from noon on August 31 to September 7.

All China pheasant seasons will open this year on October 22. A three-day season has been provided in Willamette valley counties, following a two-year closure. The dates of this season are Wednesday, October 22, and Saturday and Sunday, October 25 and 26. The Willamette valley area includes the following counties: Yamhill, Washington, Columbia, Multnomah, Clackamas, Polk, Marion, Benton, Lane and Linn. The bag limit will be two birds a day or four birds for the three-day season. Shooting hours in the valley will be from 8 a. m. to sunset.

Tillamook, Curry, Lincoln and Clatsop counties will be closed to pheasant shooting because of scarcity of birds in these sections. In all other counties, with the exception of the Willamette valley area and Malheur county, the season will be from October 22 through November 4, with a bag limit of four male birds a day and eight in any seven consecutive days or in possession at any one time.

The valley quail season will be from October 22 and through November 4, with a bag limit of ten birds in any seven days. Open counties include Grant, Jefferson, Harney, Wheeler, Klamath, Lake, Umatilla, Gilliam, Wasco, Crook, Sherman, Morrow, Deschutes, Coos, Jackson, Josephine and Douglas.

The season for Hungarian partridges will be the same as pheasant season in all eastern Oregon counties, with a bag limit of six birds a day.

Blue grouse may be shot only in Clatsop and Columbia counties with the season from October 22 to October 28 and a bag limit of two birds a day or six in the season.
