55 HIGH SCHOOLS TO SEND DELEGATES FFA CONFERENCE

The fourteenth annual three-day conference of Future Farmers of America is expected to bring some 500 members of this organization from 55 high schools to the Oregon State college campus April 30 to May 2, inclusive. While the attendance is expected to be approximately 100 fewer than last year, the same comprehensive program of organization business and project contests will be carried on.

Aside from transportation difficulties, it was necessary to limit attendance somewhat this year because of reduced facilities. The college armory, which had been used as an overflow dormitory in the past, is now used to capacity for military purposes. The FFA visitors will be housed in halls and fraternities during their three-day stay.

★ The need of well-fed manpower for defense has put the hog back on the map again. And if ever any one had a price advantage coming to him, it's the man who raises hogs.

Hogmen, here's a timely suggestion—add Dr. Hess Hog Special to your hog ration. Here's why—Hog Special is a two-job product, supplying both tonics and minerals.

Hogs on the Dr. Hess Research Farm that get HOG SPECIAL gain faster and finish out on a third less supplement and a tenth less grain. We hope you make some real hog money this year and we believe HOG SPECIAL can help you do it.
