GRANGERS HOLD MEETING FRIDAY

At an interesting and informative meeting Friday, April 24, Westland Grange voted to keep dues paid for all members in the service. The new fire prevention organization was discussed and a survey started to determine what housing and other facilities were available in case of an emergency. Floyd Laird, business and fire insurance agent of the grange, is chairman of both of these committees.

Much interest was evident in the Pomona Grange meeting which is to be held at Ferndale with State Line Grange Thursday, May 7. Anyone wishing to attend this meeting and especially those who have recently become members of Westland Grange is requested to contact either Floyd Laird or Guy Shaw to make arrangements for transportation.

Mrs. Don Alstott, chairman of the home economics club, reported a well attended meeting at the home of Mrs. Guy Shaw, April 23. The next club meeting will be at the Westland school house with Mrs. J. W. Rice as hostess.

FARMERS PLANT MANY TREES

Farmers in the Stanfield-Hermiston area were reported by Area Conservationist J. H. Parkins of the Pendleton office to have finished planting 8,450 trees and shrubs this spring.

Most of the plantings, he explained, were for windbreaks and the others were for woodlots and wildlife shelter. The leading kind planted was black locust, which accounted for 75 per cent of the total. The other varieties in order of numbers included: Russian olive, pine, and Siberian pea tree.

Parkins pointed out that wartime demands upon present timber supplies for commercial as well as home products like lumber, fuel and posts has increased the need for expanded tree planting as insurance against the time when all these wood products still will be essential, but which cannot be grown in a day.

Trees and shrubs planted in this area since 1939 have totaled 210 acres. The 1941 survival count of 95 per cent, the Area Conservationist added, indicates the success landowners and operators are having with their woody plantings.

HERMISTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Grayden D. Loree, Pastor
Our Sunday morning subject is "Can Jesus Be Forgotten?" When the average person dies he is remembered by the world no longer than five years. After almost two thousand years Jesus is still remembered—because He is not dead, He lives.

If you are not attending church elsewhere we invite you to our services. Sunday school is at 10 o'clock with classes for all. Morning worship begins at 11 o'clock. B.Y.P.U. meets at 7 p. m., and evening worship begins at 8 o'clock.

CENTRAL CHURCH OF CHRIST

C. Warner, Pastor
We shall worship Sunday morning around the theme, "The Living Bread", and Sunday evening, "The Christ Who Lives in Men".

The annual convention of the Churches of Christ of eastern Oregon will be held in the Pendleton Christian church Tuesday through Wednesday of next week. It opens at 11 a. m. Tuesday and closes at 8 p. m. Wednesday. This is not a preacher's convention but a convention for the entire church. A potluck dinner will be served at noon the opening day, a men's banquet Tuesday evening and a young people's banquet Wednesday evening. A fine program has been arranged for the entire two days. All women are especially urged to be present for the opening session on Tuesday morning.

Seniors Go To Bingham

Friday, April 24, the senior class of Hermiston High took the day off after four long years of hard study and strenuous work to motor to Bingham Springs on a traditional "Flunk Day". About forty-six seniors, accompanied by their advisers, Mrs. Clarke and Mr. Critchfield, left Hermiston at 5:30 a. m. with cars loaded with food and all the makings for a day-long spree.

VOTE ON WHEAT QUOTA SOUGHT

Seeking a "100 per cent turnout of eligible voters," A. R. Coppock, chairman of the county AAA committee, yesterday announced polling places and referendum committees for Saturday's referendum on wheat marketing quotas.

The polls will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. of the Hermiston district at the office of the assistant county agent at Hermiston.

Each voter should cast his ballot at the polling place designated for his community, the chairman said. Referendum committees have been named for each community, and each committee has been supplied with a list of eligible voters for the community. Any person who believes that he is entitled to vote but whose name is not listed on the register will be permitted to vote, and the legality of his ballot will be determined Monday, May 4, by the county committee.

Mr. Coppock announced that the following committee had been appointed for Hermiston: Chairman, R. G. Saylor, Hermiston; Vice Chairman, J. W. Foley, Echo; Regular member, Harry J. Andrews, Echo; and first alternate, J. S. Arnold, Echo.

Reemphasizing the importance of every eligible grower voting Saturday, the chairman said: "Quotas give the wheat grower a chance to solve his problems democratically, and give him an opportunity to play his full part in the nation's war effort. Every eligible voter should regard it as his patriotic duty to cast his ballot Saturday."

RUBBER BEARING PLANTS GET TEST IN OSC RESEARCH

Progress in determining the rubber content of certain plants capable of being grown in Oregon, and in bringing plants of recognized rubber-bearing characteristics to this state for field trials, is reported by federal and state agronomists of the O.S.C. experiment station. Meanwhile a large volume of letters and personal calls to the college clearly indicate the interest of Oregonians in finding some way to help in the matter of rubber shortage, says G. R. Hyslop, head of the plant industries division.

The first 250 plants of the Guayule rubber-bearing shrub have been received in the state and have been sent to Josephine county for trial under the direction of O. K. Beals, county agent. It is believed that weather, soil, and water conditions in Josephine county most nearly approach those where this plant has already proved successful. Other Guayule plants will be received soon and will be tried out, probably in the Klamath Falls and certain Willamette valley localities.

Among plants recently tested for rubber content is Euphorbia lathyris, known sometimes as moleweed, which was found to have only about one-tenth of one per cent rubber. Common bracken fern roots showed one-third of one per cent rubber. The sticky-leaved snow brush, Ceanothus velutinus, which is a range pest in Columbia county and parts of eastern Oregon, was found to have around one-tenth of one per cent rubber. Some unidentified swamp plants sent in from the coast region had even less. All of these percentages are considered too low for any commercial consideration, according to Professor Hyslop.

Of rubber-bearing plants commonly found in Oregon, the rabbit sage the most widespread. It ordinarily has approximately 2 per cent rubber, which is also too low to make its recovery practical under present conditions. Certain milkweeds found in this state have a rubber content of from 5 to 10 per cent, making them possibilities for cultivation, both for use as rubber and because the seed pods bear a silky material that might be used as a substitute for kapok. None of these milkweeds occurs naturally in sufficient quantities to make it usable at this time.

PARITY PRICES REACHED BY SOME PRODUCTS

Oregon's farm price level at 140 per cent of the 1935-1939 average is one-third higher than a year ago, according to data in a report on the agricultural situation just released by the extension service at OSC. The advance in the country as a whole has been even greater, however, than in Oregon, although some of the difference has been wiped out since January 1 as the Oregon average continued to gain that of the United States declined.

In the country as a whole, the general level of farm prices stood at 99 per cent of "parity" in purchasing value at mid-March, a gain of nearly one-fourth compared with March, 1941, although 3 per cent lower than at mid-January. The United States index of prices received by farmers dropped three points from mid-January to mid-March, to 146 per cent of the 1910-1914 average, while the index of prices paid advanced 2 points, to 148 per cent.

Considering farm wage rates as well as interest, taxes, and commodities bought by farmers, the increase in the purchasing value of farm products is less than indicated by the "parity" index. Even so, the exchange value of farm products probably is one-fifth greater than a year ago, with the exchange value of some products relatively higher than others.

The report, which is available from county agricultural agents or direct from the college, shows that farm prices for meat animals and wool are especially high. At mid-March, the United States index of meat animal prices stood at 182 per cent of the 1910-1914 pre World War I average, compared with 129 a year ago. In Oregon, beef cattle and veal calves were 64 per cent higher than the 1935-1939 pre World War II average, hogs 49 per cent, lambs 46 per cent, and wool 58 per cent higher.

The exchange value of beef cattle at mid-March was up to 133 per cent of "parity", veal calves 122, hogs 115, lambs 119, and wool 141 per cent of the 1910-1914 purchasing power value. Milk and eggs had a purchasing value of 99 per cent of parity, chickens 107, and turkeys 93. The farm price of wheat at mid-March was at 80 per cent of parity exchange value, corn 83, oats 88, barley 68, rye 60, and hay 63. Prices of grains and hay have increased materially during the past year, however, and have advanced much faster in purchasing power than animal products, although they are still relatively low, the report shows.
