Draws Large Salary Just For Showing Her Hands

Three years ago a beautiful black-haired young lady was sitting at a manicurist's table. The tall man stopped beside her on his way out. "Young lady, do you know you have the most beautiful hands I have ever seen? What's your name?" She said: "Florence Pearsall."

"Well, Miss Pearsall, I'd like to pay you for a picture of your hands." That was the beginning of the career of Florence Pearsall's hands. The man was a nail-polish-company executive who had been searching vainly for a pair of beautiful hands to use in an advertisement. Today, they earn between $300 and $400 every week for her just by letting photographers take pictures of them.

They are so valuable that they're insured for $40,000. The policy sternly forbids Florence to dial a phone, play golf or tennis, or do anything else which could possibly damage her precious manual extremities. Florence's business overhead is high. Expenses include the cost of 35 pairs of gloves and a private manicurist, paid $50 a week. She wears gloves all the time. Even when she cooks. The manicurist carries a kit with 25 different nail-polish shades, changes the color of her employer's nails five and six times a day. She keeps her hands in perfect condition by exercise, too. She's gained such perfect control over the movement of each finger that she's now able to balance an egg on one fingertip.

On occasion she has been the hands of Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Merle Oberon, Barbara Stanwyck. For advertisements showing them holding something, the clever photographers used the face and bodies of the movie gals but pasted Florence's hands onto the pictures.

Just the other day, she turned down a Hollywood offer of $20,000 a year to use her hands in close-ups. She'd rather wait until they want her face, too.

New Twist to Earning A Living in Hollywood

Bhogwan Singh has been making a good living in Hollywood for 27 years simply by knowing how to twist a cloth approximately 100 different ways.

Maybe this sounds on the silly side, but to Hollywood it's a serious matter and Bhogwan is a very important person, because by following his advice the film-makers prevent riots in Asia. The reason for this is that the cloth in question technically becomes a turban when properly wrapped, and Singh is Hollywood's official turban-wrapper.

Turban-wrapping assumed importance in filmland some years ago, when directors discovered there were dozens of ways to wrap a turban and that every little wrapping has a meaning of its own. Each little twist denotes a specific caste, and if a Brahmin twist is accidentally placed on the head of a Hindu, the customers tear up the theater seats in righteous—and riotous—indignation in India, the Malay states, and sundry other Oriental countries where they take their turbans seriously.

'Fall Guys'

Americans are the greatest "fall guys" on earth. Last year 25,000 of them died from falls—16,000 in their own homes—while two million "luckier" ones were either permanently disabled or merely painfully and expensively injured. And if you don't think a careless stumble can run into real money, bear in mind that it cost each of those 2,000,000 victims an average of $117 for not being able to keep his feet! Just how expensive a simple fall can be was indicated by a recent National Safety Council study of 4,602 home accident cases that were treated in Cook County hospital, Illinois. Two-thirds of those patients went to the hospital as a result of falls. And each of those fall cases averaged 13 days in the hospital, plus 54 days' disability at home—with attendant loss of wages.

Tips for Gardener

If you are a beginner gardener, here are some do's and don'ts that will simplify your work and pay dividends in flowers and fruit and foliage.

As a starter select a few essential tools, with others to be added from time to time as their need is shown or your purse permits. Essentials are a spade with a square edge for digging, a long-handled shovel for moving earth about, a garden rake, a bamboo one for leaves, a hoe and a trowel, and at least 50 feet of garden hose.

All tools, after being used, should be cleaned and rubbed with a dry cloth before being put in the tool shed. This will prolong their usefulness and they will give better service if kept clean.

Shiras Was First

George Shiras III, a trustee of the National Geographic society, made the first flashlight pictures of wild animals in their natural habitats. His famous "Midnight Series," established the beauty and accuracy of camera and flashlight in big-game photography, and won highest awards at home and abroad.
