The retiring of F. C. McKenzie from long years of service in the hardware business is one of those things in the mutability of life. Few men stick through three decades steadily to his business as has "Mac" without change. Few men know his business in the large, and in the finest details as he does. Time that marks and maims most of us seems to have left little trace on him. But conditions bring about changes, and we hope that he will prosper, and enjoy whatever fields of future work he may undertake.
