GRADE SCHOOL JOB FINISHED

in the building, and new hallway clocks have been installed in each hall. New desks and class room furniture has been provided for several rooms.

The outside of the building has not been entirely neglected for a new concrete ramp has been built on the west side and a new set of concrete steps on the east side.

These improvements were the direct result of greatly increased enrollment last year and in anticipation of heavy registration the coming year. The building was originally constructed in 1909 and an addition was made in 1912. For many years it housed both elementary grades and high school, but finally became so crowded that a new high school building was built in 1936. After this basement rooms and one second floor room were used merely for storage space and the remainder of the building comfortably housed the average attendance of from 220 to 240 per year. In 1936 the trustees installed a new heating plant and in 1938 a new lighting system was added for those rooms in use. With the alterations this year the building is in good condition. Last fall enrollment jumped to 980, or nearly four times the average. All disused store rooms were pressed into use and additional space rented of the Methodist church and the library.

Application was made to federal authorities for aid in housing this large increase. Such aid was definitely promised in October, 1941, but it was not until March 15, 1942, that the Federal Works Administration permitted the letting of a contract to W. E. Kennedy to carry out the work. The job is now complete, the district engineer for the F. W. A. has approved it, the auditor for the same bureau has approved the final costs and requisition for final payment has been made. About the only item left is the arrival of the federal check, and Mr. Kennedy, the contractor, wistfully eyes the mail each day and fervently hopes this is the day.

The elementary plant now consists of fifteen class rooms, ready for use. The district formerly employed eight teachers and expects to start the fall term with twelve, but all school officials expect it will be necessary to employ more, but due to the changing make-up of the community it was not deemed advisable to contract for more than twelve. There are still two vacancies of that number to fill.

BUS TRAVEL ON INCREASE

In a statement released today by Arthur M. Hill, president of the National Association of Motor Bus Operators, it was pointed out that buses have reached an all-time high in passenger traffic. Mr. Hill, on behalf of the bus industry, asked the public to cooperate with bus operators.

Mr. Hill states that in May this year traffic was 67 per cent above May of 1941, and that this exceptional increase was handled with only 27 per cent increase in mileage. This record-breaking movement of people has been accomplished with but very little new equipment and with the greatest economy of operation in tires that the industry has ever realized.

The traffic increase, Mr. Hill pointed out, was due to war demands—the carrying of war workers, men in uniform, and other essential travelers. The bus industry has absorbed a great share of the war transportation burden because the flexibility of the motor coach permits it to proceed directly to all war production plants and military camps along the highways. Buses too have absorbed a great deal of increased passenger traffic due to the decrease in the operation of private automobiles, with stops and schedules arranged in the interest of intermediate or short haul traffic.

CANNED BERRIES IN LATE SEASON BEST FLAVORED

With fruit conservation a patriotic duty this year, gleaming the strawberry fields for the smaller late berries is one way to help. While these berries take longer to pick and prepare, they are really sweeter and have more of the true strawberry flavor and aroma than the larger, earlier berries, points out Miss Lucy A. Case, extension specialist in nutrition at Oregon State college.

Incidentally, strawberries are an excellent source of vitamin C, as well as being a universal favorite for their taste.

Miss Case also suggests for canning these berries in a manner economical of sugar and one which will minimize or eliminate the separation of the berries from the juice by floating to the top of the jar. To eliminate this floating she suggests handling the fresh berries as soon after they are hulled as possible, after which they are boiled briefly—not more than two or three minutes—in hot syrup and let stand over night in a covered pan.

The syrup suggested under present sugar restrictions is 25 per cent strength, made by adding one-half cup sugar to 1 1/2 cups of water. It takes about one to 1 1/2 cups of this syrup to a quart of finished product.

By heating the berries and letting them remain in the syrup overnight they absorb the sugar, which replaces the air and thus reduces the tendency to float. These plump berries retain their color and flavor better than those that are canned immediately after sugar is added.

A longer pre-boil is recommended for firm berries such as Corvallis, and for berries that are not very mature. A shorter boil is used for softer varieties such as the Marshall, and for over-mature fruit.

This canning process is completed the next morning by bringing the berries to the scalding point and then packing in sterilized jars and boiling for 10 minutes in a water bath one
