TWO NEW OREGON SCS MEN TAKE UP DUTIES WITH OSC

Fullest possible service to Oregon farmers and ranchers in meeting their war-time production job was given today as the immediate objective in the appointment of men to fill vacancies in the Soil Conservation service staff in Oregon.

The SCS announced the appointment of Leo. L. Anderson as state conservationist, succeeding the late Solon T. White, and the SCS and O. S. C. extension service jointly announced the appointment of Gerald T. Newcomb as extension soil conservationist, both with headquarters at Corvallis.

In assuming White's former duties as state coordinator and in his capacity as state conservationist, Anderson will have somewhat enlarged responsibilities, explains J. H. Christ, now regional conservator for the Pacific coast, with headquarters in Portland. Anderson will have complete administrative direction of all SCS operations and activities, some of which are conducted cooperatively with the state agricultural experiment station, the O. S. C. extension service, and other groups.

It's common sense to be thrifty. If you save you are thrifty. War Bonds help you to save and help to save America. Buy your ten percent every pay day.

Farm Goals for 1942 Increased

Department of Agriculture Calls for Use of Every Acre to Win War.

WASHINGTON. — Declaring that events since Pearl Harbor had materially broadened demands for American food, the agriculture department has increased its 1942 production goals for hogs, corn for livestock feed, oil-bearing crops, rice, eggs, dry beans and vegetable crops for canning.

The department said that since the original goals were announced last September, the United States had come to be looked upon not only as the arsenal but the food store of the United Nations.

To meet these new demands, the department said farmers would have to produce as never before and put "every acre of land, every hour of labor and every bit of farm machinery, fertilizer and other supplies to the use which will best serve the nation's wartime needs."

Officials said crop loan programs, government purchases under lease-lend and relief programs, and sales of government-held feeds would be employed to provide, in so far as was possible, price incentives.

Corn Limitations Eased.

Rigid crop control restrictions will be retained on wheat and cotton. Slight increases will be allowed for tobacco. Asserting that large stocks of these crops already exist, the department said production beyond crop control allotments would be a "waste of labor and supplies."

Crop-control limitations on corn were eased somewhat. The 1942 planting goal was increased from 90,000,000 acres to 95,000,000. No marketing quotas will be imposed on the corn crop.

Because of increases in production of hogs and chickens, the department said larger feed supplies would be needed.

Particular emphasis will be placed on oil-bearing crops, the department said, because of loss of Far Eastern supplies owing to the war. The peanut goal was increased from 3,500,000 to 5,000,000 acres, the soy bean goal from 7,000,000 to 9,000,000 acres and the flax seed goal from 3,367,000 to 4,500,000. The department said efforts would be made to get production of lard, tallow and grease stepped up in packing plants.

Cotton Under Quota.

Other goal increases included: Rice from 1,200,000 to 1,320,000 acres, dry beans from 2,304,000 to 2,600,000 acres, eggs from 4,000,000,000 to 4,200,000,000 dozen, hogs for slaughter from 79,300,000 to 83,000,000 head, flue-cured tobacco from 762,000 to 843,000 acres, burley tobacco from 358,000 to 383,000 acres, other types of tobacco 1,200,000 to 1,320,000 acres, canned peas and tomatoes from 62,700,000 cases produced in 1941 to 73,000,000 cases.

Although cotton allotments were not increased, the department said planting was expected to total about 25,000,000 acres, compared with 23,250,000 in 1941. Marketing quotas will be imposed on this crop.

To encourage greater production of long-staple cotton, the department will offer special premiums on staples of one-eighth inch and longer.

Tree-Climbing Cats Put Sacks on New Fire Trucks

BEARDSTOWN, ILL.—A canvas sack has become standard equipment on the new fire truck here. Fire Chief Roy Patterson says his department has been called to rescue so many high-climbing cats that he had to add a sack to his equipment for his own protection.

"We rescued three cats last week," said Patterson, "one from the top of a light pole and two from tree tops."

Since cats are never in a playful mood at such altitudes, the firemen take a sack with them to throw over the cat, which thus becomes a harmless bundle to be toted to safety.

Lamplighter Harry Has Fit of Blackout Blues

KENMORE, N. Y.—Blackouts are just a headache for Harry Torillo, who works for the department of public works. His job is to extinguish all of Kenmore's 317 gas street lights in case of a blackout.

Kenmore missed complete electrification when depression forced the village to curtail expenses. Torillo must start turning out the lights about five hours before the familiar electric arcs are extinguished in the village. This seems bad enough, but putting the lights on again is even worse. It takes about two days.

NYA Constructs Trap To Catch Flies on Cows

WAURIKA, OKLA.—It was no baby fly trap that NYA youths built here to catch flies. It was so large in fact that it holds a cow. The fly trap, measuring 10 feet by 7 feet by 6, is designed so that when a cow passes through the structure, the flies get brushed off and are caught in screen containers. Such a trap has been known to catch 18 gallons of flies in a week. Suppose one was made for an elephant?
