COLUMBIA NEWS

By Mrs. Bob Woodward

Mrs. John Jendrzewski reports that she has at her home the material for making garments to supply the Red Cross Loan Closet. Now that the busy season of harvesting and canning is about over, it is hoped that more time can be given to this work. Mrs. Jendrzewski will have the garments cut out this week and will distribute to anyone willing to do the sewing. The garments to be made at this time are white outing flannel pajamas in children's sizes. Mrs. Jendrzewski would appreciate calls from anyone interested.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Struthers, who have lived at the Lathrop place since selling their home in this district last spring, moved to Irrigon last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Leurs and daughter Sharon of Dallas, Oregon, have been guests of the James Getchells this week.

Henry Baker of Pilot Rock was here Monday afternoon to visit at the home of his sister, Mrs. William Phillips. Baker was to report in Portland Wednesday for navy duty.

Mrs. W. A. Mikesell is slightly improved following a severe illness during the past two weeks.

Myra Getchell is now employed at the Ordnance depot.

Friends here have received word from Cliff Tomelson, who formerly worked here for C. A. Keller, that he is now at Pearl Harbor with the army. His brother, Clayton Tomelson, is serving with the air force in India.

CAN MORE FOOD IS ADVICE OF STATE LEADER

Every individual homemaker in Oregon can help in the nutrition for defense program by canning, freezing, drying, or storing every bit of fruit, vegetables and other foods that she can obtain and process, says Dean Ava B. Milam, chairman of the state committee on nutrition for defense and head of home economics at O. S. C.

More liberal interpretation of the sugar rationing rules is aiding in this emergency food preservation program, says Dean Milam. She has now been informed that under rationing practices now in force a homemaker may obtain all the sugar she needs to can any amount of fruit as long as the rate of one pound of sugar to four quarts of fruit is not exceeded.

This means, she says, that one is not limited in the amount of fruit put up, either by the amount canned last year or by the amount contemplated early in the season. If surplus fruit is going to waste or is easily available, it is not only the right but the patriotic duty of homemakers to obtain more canning sugar if necessary and put up more food for future use, says Dean Milam.

"If families of Oregon are to be well nourished through the winter months, home canning, freezing, drying, and proper storing of fruits and vegetables will need to be greatly increased this year over last," the state committee chairman pointed out. "A greater proportion of this year's commercially canned, dried, and frozen fruits and vegetables will be required for the army, navy, and lend-lease shipment. Less commercially preserved fruits and vegetables will be available, therefore, for ordinary civilian household consumption."

"I am therefore appealing to the homemakers of Oregon to can, freeze, dry or store the surplus fruits and vegetables with which our state is so abundantly blessed, and thus help not only Uncle Sam but help ourselves to meet the food budget problems for the coming months."
