STANFIELD NEWS

By Mrs. Rose Hedrick

From all carnival reports, a good and profitable evening was enjoyed. More than $400 were the gross receipts. The seventh graders' booth, "beat the axis" claimed to have had the best patronage and probably Mrs. Marion Switzer considers herself the best patron as Charley McCarty detective determined her to be the lucky winner of the war bond. Miss Ber-nice Hughes gained the most votes for queen and was crowned, and Lila Seal played the coronation march. The weather was terrible but fewer pranks were played late in the evening.

Bud Ledbetter from North Dakota and of the U. S. Navy and a survivor of the Wasp on September 15 when 90 per cent were rescued was here last week end to visit his cousin Woodruth Gifford.

HE ARRIVED TOO LATE WITH TOO MUCH

LET'S Break Bottlenecks AT BUS STOPS

He travels with his wardrobe on his back— all 6 suitcases full. And he always shows up late. But the war effort can't afford such delays today. Fighting men and war workers must be on time. Buses have been slowed down to save tires—that means time must not be wasted at bus stops if schedules are to be maintained.
