

CIRCULAR TELLS OF ELECTRICITY

Thousands of Oregon rural homes were equipped with electricity just prior to the outbreak of the war and may now be facing repair problems at a time when regular repair men are almost impossible to get and when even the men of the house are swamped with other work, points out Myrtle Carter, Home Demonstration Agent for Umatilla county.

This condition means that the job of keeping everyday electrical equipment in repair is falling to a considerable extent on the women of the house, who are going to have to find out that a fuse box, for example, has nothing to do with firecrackers.

To aid inexperienced folks in making simple electrical repairs, a home economics mimeographed circular No. 1678 has been issued and is available from county extension offices. It explains, among other things, that fuses in a fuse box are circuit breakers put there to serve as safety valves on the electrical system. If one goes out the lights on that particular circuit may not be used until it is replaced.

When a fuse blows out it is usually an indication that there is a short circuit or an overload merely putting in a new or bigger fuse will not correct the trouble and may be dangerous. In such cases it is often necessary to disconnect the appliance that is drawing too much current and connect it to another suitable outlet on a line capable of carrying the total load.

If a fuse that is large enough still blows out, the likelihood is that a broken wire somewhere is causing a short circuit. This will usually be found to be in a loose electrical cord which may be mended fairly easily. Care in making such repairs will pay future dividends, however. The insulation is first stripped back from the wires on either side of the break. Each of the two mended wires is wrapped first individually with friction tape and then the two are taped together.

Approximately 90 per cent of the electrical repairs needed in the home are on cords and connections.

American farmers in 1942 produced 20 per cent more food than in 1939, but 13 per cent of it went to the United States armed forces and to our allies.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"SOUL" was the subject of the Lesson - Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 14.

The Golden Text was, "My soul shall make her boast in the Lord: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together" (Ps. 34:2,3).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul . . . Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day" (Ps. 25:1,4,5).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Material sense does not unfold the facts of existence; but spiritual sense lifts human consciousness into eternal Truth. Humanity advances slowly out of sinning sense into spiritual understanding; unwillingness to learn all things rightly binds Christendom with chains" (p.95).

THIRD OF OREGON WHEAT SURPLUS USED FOR FEEDING

Seven million bushels of Oregon wheat, or an amount greater than one-third of the 20 million bushel 1942 crop, have been converted into war-needed livestock, dairy and poultry products through the government's feed wheat program in the past 12 months, the state AAA office reported this week.

Half of the total amount sold, or about 3,710,000 bushels, went to Oregon feeders. In addition, 2739 carloads of Oregon wheat were shipped to other western states to fill feed wheat orders.

Both the grower and the feeder have benefited from the program. AAA officials point out. The wheat grower's acute storage problem has been eased, and feeders have obtained abundant supplies of moderate-priced grain for production of meat, milk, eggs and wool.

A large part of the amount sold in the state went direct to farmers, both in carload purchases by larger operators and through pooling arrangements participated in by 20 or 30 farmers. Prices varied somewhat during the year, but averaged between $30 and $32 a ton, depending on the location of the buyer.

Most of the wheat sold during the past year was grown in 1941 and turned over to Commodity Credit by growers in satisfaction of government loans.

The price of feed wheat in February is 98 cents a bushel in western Oregon, 94 cents in eastern Oregon. These prices are less than loan rates at most points. CCC is also offering to sell wheat for non-feed purposes, but the price is 23 cents above the loan value at the point of storage, or approximately parity.

Because of the transportation situation, farmers ordering feed wheat are advised to anticipate their needs several weeks ahead. County AAA offices can supply full information on ordering wheat, and county agents have bulletins showing how wheat can best be used for feeding all classes of livestock.

The only difference between a currency bank note of the U. S. Treasury and a U. S. War Savings Bond is that the latter bears three per cent compound interest. Make your investment accordingly.
