Hay farmers in the Butter Creek district are unable to find men to work as stackers and as a consequence many of them are arranging to have their alfalfa baled in the field as it is cut. Chapman and Dillard French on the upper creek, have arranged with the Drennan crew to bale their first cutting to get it out of the way. They cannot find a man anywhere to work on the stack.

Sloan Thomson completed harvesting his first crop of alfalfa Tuesday after a long battle with the weather. The hay has been baled but now his problem is to find trucks to move the 250 tons or more of hay to a shipping point. The Drennan baling crew, which put up his crop now moves to the Saylor place down Butter Creek, and then will work for Chapman and French on the upper creek.

Grant Buchanan, who has been staying with his son Fred near Lone, was taken to the hospital at Pendleton Friday, and is expected to be confined there for a week or more. He recently returned from Ritter Springs.

Although some of the wheat farmers of this vicinity had hoped to start harvesting the first of this week there has been no grain brought in yet. Wheat generally was too green to cut the first of this week and while some may start their combines by the 15th, more of them will wait until the first of next week, the latest date known for years in this district.

Members of the school boards from Echo, Butter Creek, and Alpine districts met at the Sloan Thomson home Monday evening to arrange for tuition and transportation to Echo for the ensuing year. Pupils from Butter Creek and Alpine will come to Echo as heretofore and a bus operated by Floyd Mathers will cover those districts and also pick up pupils in the Meadows district west of Echo.

H. C. Vogler Jr. reports that he has sold all of his wheat land north of the Echo-Lexington highway west of Butter Creek but will continue to operate the wheat land south of the highway, about 3000 acres. Harvesting will probably start Monday. The grain crop in that section is reported to be much better than normal, although somewhat under the banner yield of last season.

Rev. Earl B. Cotton and family have arrived in Echo from Fossil and Rev. Members of Echo Garden club and their husbands, laden with good things to eat, hid themselves to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Cooper Thursday evening and proceeded to serve a delicious pot luck dinner. The Coopers, who had been invited to go to a picnic dinner with friends and were ready for the trip, were certainly surprised when their picnic friends arrived, trailed by 18 others, who unceremoniously took possession of the kitchen and dining room. Mrs. Cooper, who has been an active member of the Garden club, was presented with a gift. The Coopers are leaving soon for the Willamette valley, where they will live on their farm. Much regret is being expressed by friends because of their departure.
