ECHO NEWS ITEMS

By Mrs. W. H. Crary

Blair Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Coleman of Echo, writes that he is now in a new camp, the location of which is not given but he does say his company was 30 days on a ship en route from Alaska to the present location. Blair has been stationed for more than a year at Seward, Alaska, in an anti-aircraft division of the army.

Mrs. Josephine Berglin, who has been here several months visiting her daughter, Mrs. L. E. Wadsworth, has now gone to Bremerton, Wn., where she will stay for a while with her sister, Mrs. Berglin, whose home is in Minnesota, may decide to remain on the west coast for the winter.

Melvin Dick, bus driver on the Nolin school route, has been released from the Pendleton hospital and is now at his home at Nolin. He is recovering from severe injuries sustained in a fall from a horse recently. Joe DuPuis is substituting for him on the school bus.

Mrs. Robert E. Crisler and infant daughter returned last week from North Carolina and will spend the winter here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Krause. Her husband, Pfc. Robert Crisler, is in the air service at a North Carolina camp.

Mrs. Joe DuPuis and infant son, Douglas Edward, have returned from the Pendleton hospital and are now at home at the DuPuis farm near Nolin.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wadsworth and family, who have resided in Echo for the past year, moved to a few miles east of Hermiston. Mr. Wadsworth has been employed as a teacher in the Columbia school for the ensuing year and started work there Tuesday.

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Gray left Saturday for a ten day business trip to Portland and vicinity.

In a neck and neck contest Friday Leon Reese was elected student body president of Echo school, winning over Dean P-hertson by a margin of one vote. Other officers elected were Bill Esselstyn, vice president; Pauline Raach, secretary; Mary Arnold, treasurer and Mildred Penney, sergeant at arms.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Irvine and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Helmick went to Pendleton Saturday for a visit with the Irvine's grandson, Irvine Howard, who left that evening for Utah to be inducted into the army.

Lemuel Ward left Sunday for Portland where he will seek employment in shipyard work. Mrs. Ward and the children will remain in Echo until living quarters are secured in Portland, when they will join Mr. Ward.

Wheat harvest is still under way at the Hoke lands west of Nolin and although six combines are working in the outfit it is estimated that harvesting will not be completed until late in October. The wheat, which is being handled in bulk, is hauled by truck to a warehouse at Nolin.

Mrs. Edward Liesegang was called to Portland Tuesday by news of the death of her brother, Albert E. Bottger, 43, who shot himself after killing his 8-year-old son Gary, at his home in that city. Albert Bottger was a son of James Bottger, former Echo farmer, and he operated his father's farm east of Echo for several years in partnership with George Vogt, who now resides in Pendleton. He left here about 10 years ago and recently he and his wife have been employed in the shipyards. Two children, James and Angela, and Mrs. Bottger were away from home when the tragedy occurred.

Two young married men of Echo are included in the list of local men who leave here September 23 for induction into the service, Stephen Spike the local postmaster, and Harold Liesegang, who has been employed at the ordnance depot. Among others included in this call are Homer Bowman, William Correa, and Ted Laughlin, a former Echo resident.

Lee Ward of Seattle and his sisters, Mrs. Ben Wiley and Mrs. Emory Turpin of Tacoma were here over Sunday for a visit with their father, R. E. Ward. Lee is now employed at the Boeing airplane.

Cornelius Melville of Lexington has purchased the home ranch and dairy business of F. J. Irvine and will move to town about October 1 to take possession. Mr. Irvine gave an option early in August for the sale of the property to John F. Gordon of Pendleton but the latter was unable to complete the deal. The dairy business will be continued for a while, and possibly permanently, under the management of William Helmick. Mr. and Mrs. Irvine are negotiating the purchase of another residence property here and will continue to reside in Echo.

A dinner is to be given at the M. E. church basement Thursday evening, September 16 and the proceeds will go for the benefit of the church. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Laughlin have sold their two acre tract south of Echo to Ellis L. Richards of Pendleton and will move to Echo where they have purchased the Harold Stone residence on Kennedy street, formerly owned by Wm. Oliver. Mr. Richards will operate the Stanfield creamery route and reside at the Echo place.

Fred Hale, former Echo man, is reported to be in the Good Samaritan hospital at Portland as a result of back injuries sustained while working for the Fuller paint company in that city.

Dr. Koepke of Watsonville, Calif., stopped in Echo the first of the week en route to Pendleton to call on Mrs. Leona Thompson, an old friend of the Koepke family.

Science and the Forbidden Fruit. What have scientists discovered about the forbidden fruit that Adam and Eve ate in the Garden of Eden? What was the nature of the fruit and what was its contents? This interesting subject will be presented in our morning worship.

1944 FARM GOALS DUE; ALL OREGON CROPS NEEDED

Oregon will determine the best contributions that the state can make to the peak food production needed to speed victory in 1944, reports R. B. Taylor, chairman of the state USDA War Board, and how much of the needed crops each individual farm can produce will be largely a matter for the operator to decide.

Within the next few weeks, representatives of the War Food administration will meet with the state war board and other agricultural leaders to discuss 1944 food production plans. The nation's food needs will be outlined, and the contributions that this state can make to needed production discussed. Production goals will be established shortly afterward, followed by a mobilization drive to inform every farmer of the amounts and kinds of commodities needed.

Pointing out that much of the fall planting will be done before goals are announced, Taylor believes that farmers who plant every acre to the crops it can produce the best will find their 1944 production in line with the goals.

While the War Food administration has requested an increase in wheat acreage, Taylor asks farmers to remember that there will also be a continued need for peak production of just about every crop grown in the state.

"If you have land and facilities for growing dry peas, beans, flax, potatoes or canning crops, plant it to those crops," the war board chairman advises. "Land best adapted to production of grain should be planted to the cereal that will produce the most tonnage per acre, wheat, oats or barley."

There will be no restrictions of any kind on wheat acreage, nor will there be any penalties or payments in connection with meeting the production goals, Taylor said. He believes that goals are intended to give producers information as to needed crops, and it's up to the producer to decide how much and what kinds of crops his farm can produce to best advantage.

America is all out for the INVASION

LET Adolph plug his ears to deaden the sound of the bombs and the slashing of bayonets . . . he'll still feel their destruction.

He started a job much too big for him, but not too big for us to finish . . . and he knows we're on our way.

He knows there's going to be an invasion, and fears it. We know it, too, but we also know that it must get its start right here with our purchase of INVASION WAR BONDS.

For a successful invasion, every employed American must invest at least $150 during the Third War Loan. Regular payroll deductions may be included in this amount.
