Can You Picture Oregon without Farms and Ranches?

The crops and other products that our farms and ranches are yielding—under a far-sighted policy established by successive state legislatures, has given agriculture a leading place in the state's economy—and in the nation's war effort.

We're helping farmers by giving them easy access to nearby towns and cities for marketing crops, and buying supplies. Our buses have aided them by bringing farm workers right to their gates. In many cases buses are the only form of public transportation. It's all part of Overland Greyhound's job—making good neighbors of all the communities our buses serve in this state.
