Juvenile Delinquency An Increasing Menace

Juvenile delinquency is a subject in which we are always concerned; but now the problem in this county, and throughout the state and nation, is commanding very serious attention. Juvenile courts are crowded and officers of the law are constantly vigilant in their efforts to protect society from the acts of young law breakers. Homes for delinquents are filled and parental control and parole guardianships fail in many cases to overcome the growing evil. How to save these young delinquents from gradually becoming arch criminals and to protect the community from their depredations and immoral acts is a matter in which every parent and good citizen should be deeply interested.

In most cases the parents and home life are mostly to blame. These youngsters should be at home or in school. Their fathers and mothers should know where they are and what associations they have—what type of habits they are forming. Parental neglect and the home life of parents contribute more to delinquency than any other cause. The idea that your child would not do this or that is silly in our modern social setup. To throw the responsibility of good behavior of your sons and daughters on the schools or officers of the law is parental delinquency equalled by your bad example and slack regulations at home.

It is your job as parent to know what environment is misleading your child into paths of ruin, and to provide such environment as will lead your girl or boy into the paths of virtue, thrift, industry and high thinking. These lines are not directed to those homes and parents who are unfortunate, but as well as to the higher circles or home life. Boys and girls are boys and girls with the same tendencies in every walk of life.

All good citizens and good parents should take to heart the increasing growth of delinquency and give aid and help to the courts and officers of the law in their efforts to handle the situation that has been increased by the war and the evils that follow.

Hanford and Richland Spell McNary Dam

They say—and they are many and from all directions—that the plant at Hanford and the permanent homes at Richland would not have been built without the assurance of construction of McNary dam. And, reasoning in reverse, now that that immense construction is about completed, the building of the dam will soon follow. Two things will be greatly needed—power and navigation—not only for the plant already constructed, but for factory purposes which are now being more than just talked about.

The vast development that is to follow in the next few years will excel the fondest hopes and great visions of the early promoters of the Umatilla Rapids dam—now named after Senator McNary—which is the proven key to the gateway of the Inland Empire.

What's the Rush?

IT'S THE TELEPHONE RUSH.

Every night thousands of service men and women dash to the nearest telephones to talk with families and friends at home. Most of the Long Distance calls from camps and naval stations are crowded into a few short hours.

Many circuits are likely to be crowded at that time and it helps a lot when you keep the lines clear from 7 to 10 for service men and women.
