ORDNANCE MAN WINS PROMOTION

Pvt. Loren E. Miller, Ordnance, Ore., was recently promoted to technician fifth grade at Army Service Forces Training Center (Ordnance), Mississippi Ordnance Plant, Flora, Miss. He is assigned to the supply section of one of the training companies here.

A graduate of Pilot Rock high school, Cpl. Miller was employed as senior storekeeper at Umatilla Ordnance Depot before his induction.

LOCAL YOUTH IN FIGHTING AREA

Sixth Army Group, France—A supply truck, heading towards the Seventh Army front, reached the top of the hill, its motor sputtering to a halt. It was piled high with supplies for a tired and foot-sore infantry company, and the breakdown threatened a serious delay to a fighting outfit.

A few hours later, the same truck was speeding on its way, the ailing part replaced and the motor checked. Responsible for this was a fast-moving crew of mechanics from a light maintenance ordnance company with the 45th Division, Keeping the "Thunderbird" Division highly mobile, with a maximum of fire-power, has presented the unit with innumerable problems.

As the Seventh Army swept northward to the German border, supply lines lengthened and mileage numbers on vehicle speedometers jumped to five figures. With this came a pressing need for quick repair jobs, changing of motors, and general over-hauling service.

Although work was limited somewhat when the unit bivouacked in open fields, where rain, mud and darkness interfered with repair work, they nevertheless managed to keep the Division's vehicles abreast of the Army's lightening-like advance.

Among the first ordnance men to land in Sicily, they serviced the 45th Division's trucks and guns throughout the campaign. During the Italian fighting, the unit spent a busy winter keeping their vehicles rolling through mountainous terrain. At the Anzio Beachhead, despite constant interruptions by German 88's, the 45th Division's trucks, half-tracks and guns were kept in fighting condition.

Sgt. Harold Rainwater of Hermiston is a member of the above unit.

Women's Activity a "Must"

"I prize American liberty" is a basic reason why one American woman, Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds of Cambridge City, and Indiana's former state treasurer, advocates political activity as a 1944 "must" for American women.

In this, Mrs. Reynolds herself gives more than passing "lip service." She gives daily evidence of her strong beliefs in active political service, as a campaign assistant to Miss Marion E. Martin, in charge of women's activities for the Republican presidential campaign.

"I believe the Republican candidates, Governors Dewey and Bricker, offer us the true leadership of liberty we must have to help this nation go forward," Mrs. Reynolds says. "That is why I am doing all I can to bestir American women in their political thinking, and to direct some straight-thinking on the 1944 issues."

At the New York campaign headquarters, Mrs. Reynolds is applying her knowledge of practical politics. She learned "the hard way," first as a precinct worker back in 1920, then through county and state work, and finally on the Republican National committee, of which she is a former vice-chairman.

As Indiana's state treasurer for five years, she had the distinction of being the first woman elected to a major state office.

No Two Pants Suits

With 1,900,000,000 pounds of surplus wool piled up in this country, 600,000,000 pounds of it imported from Australia, it remains utterly impossible for thrifty Americans to follow the economical policy of buying two pairs of trousers with a suit of clothes.

In Idaho, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, after conferences with leading sheepmen of the western area, found that this uneconomic condition is bound to react to the damage if not the utter ruin of American sheepraisers who have been urged by the New Deal administration to increase their flocks.
