Your One Vote Important In Close Election

Next Tuesday all of you who love your country will go to the polls to perform the most sacred duty of citizenship under the democracy for which we are fighting.

In no election since the Wilson-Hughes campaign will your vote be worth so much. Wilson won Minnesota by 392 votes and California by 3806, the loss of either would have lost him the presidency, and changed the course of American history. We recall that the late Senator McNary lost a place on the supreme bench of Oregon by only one vote. By the same token one vote could change a national election. If for instance, the six electors of either party in this state should be elected by one vote, they could wield the balance of power in the electoral college, as did our delegation of three votes determine the election of Hayes in the Hayes-Tilden meeting of 1876.

Since the editorial of last week in this paper the situation has changed very little. By and large it is still a 50-50 guess. The many polls taken by both parties show about the same. Undoubtedly Dewey is gaining and the republicans are confident and the democrats feel safe, and all are uneasy and working hard.

In the intensity of such a struggle any small incident may change the result, such as the Chinese affair, or the mistake of Senator Truman in reading out of his party Senator Walsh of Massachusetts as an isolationist, or a few speeches of Governor Warren just out of the hospital in California, which has been counted for the democrats. The pivotal states today appear to be Massachusetts and Pennsylvania to be turned by the labor vote. If Dewey wins these he is certain of election, and the same for Roosevelt. New York is rated 51 per cent for Dewey and 49 per cent for Roosevelt; Ohio 53 per cent for Dewey and Bricker; Minnesota 50-50, and Illinois the same. The mid-west is still for Dewey and the west largely for Roosevelt. The Texas oil industry and the anti-negro democrats are fighting the president, and a divided delegation from that state is possible, and in the deep south a few democrats may cast their electoral ballots for Senator Byrd. The belated count of the soldier vote may determine the election in some states, as in California where the soldier vote cannot be counted finally until November 27.

The indifference of many voters and failure to go to the polls may change the result in many states—too busy, too inconvenient, too prosperous to cast a ballot.

In such a close contest the presidential election may be from one vote to a land slide. It is, therefore, important for every good republican or democrat, man or woman, to come to the aid of the party.

Mark Your Ballot
33X W. P. Graham - Nov. 7, 1944

The year 1944 is a momentous period for America. The political actions and conclusions of the voters this year will be epochal. The issue and the result will be for the better or for worse. For 12 unprecedented years we have had a condition called the New Deal, a political monstrosity inaugurated and proclaimed by a regime 12 years in office and now asking for an additional four years. I want to ask you—are we a Republic?

Do we still believe in and subscribe to representative government? Do we believe in our constitution and the Bill of Rights? Or do we prefer government by edicts and bureaucracy? The choice is yours—also the credit or blame. The decision is now. And by the way, my own opponent is a fourth term aspirant. That would be 16 years perpetuity—just think. This condition in a land where exists a reservoir of personnel competent and qualified for replacements regardless of partisan politics or the individual age of the incumbents. Continued administrations do get in a rut. Do grow tired. Do become obsolete. Let's pep up—try new blood, fresh energy, strong direct approach & a new departure. (pd. adv.)

The New York Times which opposed Mr. Roosevelt in 1940 supports him in 1944.

"There is the record and the present position of the two parties themselves. The Democratic party has not only written a more forthright of policy. On this issue, it is demonstrably more cohesive, and therefore more capable of prompt and decisive action than the Republican party.

"But there is nothing theoretical or unimportant to the future about the difference between the two sets of professionals in this respect. The matter has been put to the test, time after time, on issues of critical importance. Repeal of the Arms Embargo, which enabled us to arm our natural and inevitable allies; Selective Service, which gave us an adequate army of our own; Lend-Lease, which paved the way for the grand alliance of the United Nations and the organization of the peace—These are the Chief measures by which the security of the American people has been Defended. Every one of these measures was adopted by virtue of Democratic votes in Congress. Everyone of them was opposed by large majorities of the Republican members in both the Senate and the House."
