not going too well at his factory and it will be necessary for him to borrow two hundred thousand dollars if he is to keep going.

In the meantime, Mrs. Martin's rich but tight-fisted old aunt (Marilyn Snyder) comes to visit. All the servants are gone for the day, and as if this weren't enough trouble, Joseph receives a wire that his business associate, Mr. Mundorf (Leslie Brown), is coming. In order to let Mr. Mundorf know they are financially well-to-do, and thus borrow the needed money, they decide to have Elizabeth Martin, their beautiful daughter (Lela McConnell) and Johnny Martin, their son who is a college sophomore (Wayburn Glasgow), pose as the maid and chauffeur.

Then the telephone rings—and only brings more trouble as Johnny's sweetheart, Lucile Armitage (Dolores Sturm) and Elizabeth's college sweetheart, Tom DeNorth (Jack Chapman), are at the railroad station and announce that they are coming to visit.

When they arrive and see Johnny and Elizabeth dressed as servants, they think they have lied to them about being Joseph Martin's children, and plan to get even with them by staging a fake elopement.

Then Elizabeth and Johnny become disgusted with their home life, for they blame their parents for what has happened, and decide to leave home. Fortunately, at that time, Joseph discovers their plans and proceeds to stop the action.

In the meantime, Aunt Mat has consented to consider loaning them the money, so they would not be forced to borrow from Mr. Mundorf, who had been mystified by everyone's refusal to talk, and had left the house in a puff of anger.

Finally, everything straightens out, as Aunt Mat generously offers to give the family any amount of money, Mr. Mundorf returns to apologize and the sweethearts are reunited.

Harriet, the sassy maid (Doris Jones), Jonathan, the very proper butler (Roscoe McGrow), and Joseph's fun-loving sister, Helen (Marjorie Hughes), also had a hand in the hilarious proceedings. Miss Audrey Hall was director of the play and a fine job she did, too.

SCHOOL PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED

The sophomore-freshman class play, "The Whole Truth", which was presented last Thursday, March 8, at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium was a fine success.

The play was a three-act comedy centered around the situation which arises when the Martin family and the local minister decide to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth all the time. The scatter-brained Mrs. Martin, who lives for nothing but buying new hats (Barbara Todd), made the arrangement with Reverend Teasle (George Neary), and grudgingly the rest of the Martin family consented.

Joseph Martin, who thinks his wife's hats and ideas are atrocious, played by Frank Myrick, informs the family that things are
