What Is To Come Out Of San Francisco

Out of the confusion of thought and the struggles of assembled nations laboring to establish principles for permanent peace throughout a world, the San Francisco conference is nearing adjournment. The leading minds of forty-nine countries have thrashed over the Atlantic charter, the doctrines of Dumbarton Oaks, the Mexico congress, the Teheran and Yalta declarations of the Big Three, and the world wide addresses of great statesmen, able writers and radio commentators. There is no limit to the ingredients in the boiling caldron that must be reduced to first principles that may control the fighting propensities of human beings. History from Adam records wars and recurrence of wars, but our civilization that failed to prevent the present war may find itself so rebuked by its injustice, horrors and atrocities, and the impending terrors of modern war equipment, that it will search deeply for the controlling principles of brotherly love and human welfare in state and nation, and between nations. The problems are so great that every good American citizen should give thought and study to the work of the Golden Gate assembly, and endeavor to sustain its achievements, even though it may fail in part, and will need many amendments.

The effort to prevent wars and establish permanent peace through this conference will not, however, include strife within each nation. The new ideologies will not all be killed on battlefields. Facism and totalitarian government will find tolerance in some nations. Communism will remain strong in Russia and some other countries, and socialism is everywhere in some form or other. Russia is so adverse to capitalism that it may have a revolution if its people are not satisfied. They have discovered much during this war and may have a new unrest in favor of democracy, and a greater freedom. The Balkans will be socially a continued sore thumb and Germany, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, and perhaps France and India, and North Africa have racial and social conflicts that no new constitution for the world can direct or control. America expects to lead in the reconstruction, and is expected to do the greater part, and therefore, we, as citizens will find the load heaviest in the maintenance of peace, democracy, and the better ways of human life.
