Umatilla teacher receives Colonial Williamsburg scholarship

A Umatilla high school teacher has received a scholarship to bring Colonial Williamsburg to his students.

Chris Early, English Language Learners (ELL) and social studies teacher at Umatilla High School, was awarded a scholarship to attend the Colonial Williamsburg Teacher Institute, a six-day interdisciplinary course where teachers exchange ideas with historians, meet character interpreters and examine interactive teaching techniques.

Early was inspired to apply for the program because of his passion for American government.

"I have long been fascinated how our Constitution has led to expanding opportunities for more and more of our citizens over time," Early said. "I am excited to be learning more about the time and place from which many of the ideas in our Constitution came."

The high school sessions for the Teacher Institute study civics through the lens of American history. Teachers will make connections to past and present-day issues during visits to Jamestown, Williamsburg and Richmond, Va.

"This is an exciting opportunity for one of our high school teachers to gain teaching strategies and interactive methods to make history more exciting for students in the Umatilla School District," Heidi Sipe, Umatilla School District superintendent, said. "We are pleased that Chris was chosen and look forward to him sharing what he learns."

Hermiston Fire and Emergency Services staff practice with the vacuum splinting kits received through a grant from the Good Shepherd Community Health Foundation.

Grant purchases vacuum splints

A Good Shepherd Community Health Foundation grant of $3,353 has purchased seven vacuum splinting kits for Hermiston Fire and Emergency Services.

The splints work for "every conceivable" splinting situation, from dislocated shoulders to angulated fractures, according to a release from Hermiston Fire. The splints mold to the patient, preventing circumferential pressure, which reduces nerve, tissue and blood vessel damage. The kits have a variety of sizes and a pump, which evacuates the air and makes them rigid — less painful to apply than traditional splints.

The grant was awarded in mid-March, and the vacuum splinting kits have been received and placed on each of Hermiston's five ambulances, as well as first response vehicles in Stanfield and Umatilla.
