Anguiano awarded OSHA scholarship

Nine Oregon high school graduates are recipients of the 2018 Workers' Memorial Scholarship awards, the Oregon Occupational Safety and Health Division (Oregon OSHA) announced. The awards program helps finance higher education for family members of Oregon workers who have been fatally injured or permanently disabled on the job.

Anguiano

Salma Anguiano of Hermiston, a 2018 graduate of Hermiston High School, is one of the students receiving a scholarship. A vehicle accident left her stepfather, who worked at a dairy farm, a quadriplegic. Anguiano is receiving a $1,500 award.

Oregon OSHA will honor the recipients during a public ceremony at 1 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 10, in Room 260 of the Labor and Industries Building in Salem.

Each of the recipients has different dreams and career aspirations. All of them have experienced the personal and financial hardships that result when a parent is lost to a workplace death or permanently disabled while on the job.

Bookminders meets Tuesday

A memoir by J.D. Vance about multiple generations of his family and their struggles is featured during the upcoming Hermiston Public Library book club meeting, which is being held on a new day.

Bookminders will discuss "Hillbilly Elegy: A Memoir of a Family and Culture in Crisis" Tuesday, Aug. 14 at 1:30 p.m. at The Pheasant Bar & Grill, 149 E. Main St., Hermiston. In the New York Times best-seller, Vance writes candidly about his family's transition from being "dirt poor" to middle-class life, yet never fully escaping the legacy of abuse, alcoholism, poverty and trauma. The author also shares how he still carries around the demons of his chaotic family history.

The book club, which is free and open to everyone, meets the second Tuesday of each month. Copies of "Hillbilly Elegy" are available at the library. For more information, call 541-567-2882 or stop by the library at 235 E. Gladys Ave.
