THREE MINUTES WITH ...

JIM SCHLENKER Chief Operating Officer,

Good Shepherd Health Care System

When and why did you move to Hermiston? My family and I moved to Hermiston in March of 2015 as I took the job of Chief Operating Officer at Good Shepherd Health Care System.

What is your favorite place to eat in Hermiston? Walker's Kitchen

What do you like to do in your spare time? I like to golf when I am not playing with my kids or traveling with my family.

What surprises you about Hermiston? How many things there are to do and how friendly the people really are.

What was the last book you read? "Ready Player One" by Ernest Cline

What website or app do you use most other than Facebook? WPT Online Poker (LOL)

If you could travel anywhere, where would you go?

Anywhere tropical. I love the tropics.

What is the funniest thing that's ever happened to you?

After a late night of studying in college (yes some of us actually did that), I ended up in the wrong showers very early in the morning.

What is one of your goals for the next 12 months?

Finding time to plan a special trip for my family and my wife to celebrate our 10 years together.

What is your proudest accomplishment? Going back to college and completing my Masters degree (at Penn State University) in December while working and my family being there to support me the whole time.

One man is dead and another will be charged today with first degree murder after a shooting in downtown Hermiston yesterday at about 2:30 p.m.

Joe Perez, 36, of Hermiston was pronounced dead at Good Shepherd Community Hospital after being shot at least three times in the back. Police arrested John Ralph Crespin, Jr. in connection with the crime.

According to witand nesses police accounts, the incident began with an attempted car theft in the 700 block of East Newport. After Perez allegedly failed to take the car at knifepoint from Crespin's wife, a chase ensued, with John Crespin and his son, Billy, pursuing Perez on foot.

Perez pleaded with customers of the Eastside Market to drive him away, but found no takers.

The chase continued for five blocks to the intersection of Newport and Southeast Second with Crespin now alone in pursuit. As Perez crossed the south edge of St. Anthony's Clinic property, he was shot by several rounds from a .22-caliber revolver at short range.

Perez fell to the ground in Fontaine's Restaurant parking lot. Crespin then went into the lounge and surrendered the revolver to Karen Fontaine, who was tending the bar.

The one thing that has been established about the controversial proposal to change the name of the pool behind the John Day Dam is most people in the area apparently like what it's called now: Lake Umatilla.

A few politicians have been agitating to change the name and want to call it Lake Aldrich, honoring E.B. Aldrich, publisher of the East Oregonian, his widow still being president of the newspaper.

But Mayor A.L. "Bud" Draper of Umatilla is leading the vocal defense of the "good" name of Lake Umatilla.

A voice from another world, the Tri-City Herald, has come out with a different version of what the lake should be called. The Washington newspaper wants to tab it Lake Dodd for Elmer Perry Dodd of Hermiston, who did a lot of leg work to secure the McNary Dam.

75 YEARS AGO JUNE 8, 1944

Editor's note: The Allied invasion of Normandy, France known as D-Day took place June 6, 1944. The first news of the great invasion was received in Hermiston Monday evening shortly after 10 o'clock over the radio. Many of those who were fortunate enough to be tuned in at that time remained on the networks most of the night as all stations were buzzing with news. When early morning came, the news spread and most of our citizens spent the larger part of Tuesday listening in on the radios or inquiring about the streets as to the latest hourly reports. Few people thought of, or talked of, anything else.

A loud speaker was kept going from the Carpenters Local hall during the day giving prominent events as they were reported from the scenes of the battle. Flags were unfurled from many buildings, and churches were opened for prayer services and a community prayer meeting was held at the Baptist church at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Much concern was felt for some of our Hermiston boys who were last England. reported in some of whom are pilots, while others are with the amphibious and ground forces. All are prayerful and hopeful that they have safely endured the terrible ordeal of the last few days and will be successful in the days to come.

At a meeting of the city council Thursday night a motion prevailed that the city attorney be instructed to draw up an ordinance which will have for its purposes the abolishing of all future building of board sidewalks in Hermiston, and that hereafter only concrete sidewalks will be allowed.

This is a good move, and it is hoped the civic body will go a step further and order at once the removal of a few of the derelict sidewalks now existing in the main part of town and have them replaced with concrete ones.

2) Advertising merchants constitute only percent of all business failures reported in Bradstreet and in Dunn's, says an OAC news exchange. Of all business failures in the entire country, 84 percent are non-advertisers, mostly small town merchants.

The Oregon dispatch says that Oregon editors have long known that the phenomenal success of mail order houses in Oregon is due to paid publicity, but many merchants seem to think that this fact is used only to wheedle money out of them. The merchants can hardly accuse the great rating firms of Bradstreets and Dunn being partners in this imaginary scheme.
