HERMISTON HERALD

The Echo Toy Run, which gathers donations for children in need, will go on this year, according to a news release.

It was begun by Al Sells, who organized the event for 15 years until his death in 2019 in a motorcycle crash. The event has been carried on in his name by friends and family for the past two years. The 17th annual event will begin Saturday, Dec. 5, at 12 noon in downtown Echo and continue to Good Shepherd Medical Center, 610 N.W. 11th St., Hermiston.

All motorcyclists, and drivers of other vehicles interested in participating, are encouraged to bring a new unwrapped toy in its original packaging, or packaged so it can be wiped down and sanitized, to the event. Participants will then join a vehicle parade to the hospital.

Once arriving at Good Shepherd, participants are asked to wear masks and not gather for group photos, and that 6 feet of distance is maintained while toys are placed in the bins. Organizers request no cash donations.

The toys collected during the annual toy run are distributed by the hospital to children undergoing treatment. Extra toys are donated to the Hermiston Police Department for Christmas Express.

For more information, call or text Amanda Silvani at 541-720-9304.

PET OF THE WEEK

Stella is a 10 year old Doxie, currently being fostered in Portland. She loves people, her squeaky toys, cuddling in a warm lap, going for walks, and has a happy attitude. She gets along with every dog she meets. She does not like being in a crate, and will be vocal about it. Stella does have a nasal tumor, but the vet does not believe it is cancer.
