New area resident raises an internet sensation

When Charly Hotchkiss moved to Pendleton in early January to take the job as the news clerk for EO Media Group, she brought along an Instagram celebrity.

Thumbz, her 28-toed cat.

The orange feline has the congenital physical anomaly polydactyly.

Hotchkiss was 15 and living in Santa Fe, New Mexico, when she acquired the cat. Her parents employed a man who had an extra cat, Hotchkiss said, and the man was planning to either give the 1-year-old cat to a new owner or release it to the wild so “the coyotes could have it.”

“He’s not a great guy,” Hotchkiss said.

She heard he killed his ex-girlfriend and himself sometime after letting go of the cat.

For Hotchkiss, Thumbz filled a cat-shaped hole in her heart. Still grieving over the death of her previous cat a couple months earlier, she said she was ready for a new critter. And when her father called her and asked her if she wanted a cat who might “have something wrong with him,” she rushed over to claim him.

When she first spotted him, she noticed his extra toes, hence the name. But there was nothing wrong with him. Polydactyly is not uncommon in cats, Hotchkiss said, but having 28 toes is a world record. The cat has seven digits on each paw.

The Guinness World Records website confirms her claim. It names a 28-toed Canadian cat, Jake, as the world-record holder with the same situation — seven toes on each of its four paws.

“I really wish he had one more,” Hotchkiss said.

When she welcomed the cat into her life, she did not imagine the fame Thumbz would achieve.

Today, the cat has more than 23,000 Instagram followers. More people follow Thumbz than live in either Pendleton or Hermiston.

Instagram fame

When she entered college, Hotchkiss started an Instagram account for Thumbz. She said it was just something for her to share pictures with her friends.

“I really wasn’t taking it very seriously,” she said.

Fame took off thanks to one of her favorite podcasts, Morbid: A True Crime Podcast.

Hotchkiss’s sister, who also is a fan of Morbid, wrote a letter to the hosts of the show and told them of Thumbz. The letter, “How My Sister Got Her 28-Toed Cat from a Murderer,” was received and read on the podcast last year. Along with telling the story, the podcast shared Thumbz’s Instagram handle @thumbzthecat, and people started following it en masse.

“Overnight, he gained thousands of followers,” Hotchkiss said. “So then I started being more active with it.”

She said she began posting more, which gained the attention of even more followers. In addition, a kitty litter company took notice. PrettyLitter featured Thumbz in an ad last year, she said. The ad appeared on Instagram.

Thumbz has 28 toes — seven on each paw. His owner, Charly Hotchkiss of Pendleton, said that ties the Guinness World Record for most toes on a cat.

Thumbz, a 28-toed cat living in Pendleton with its owner Charly Hotchkiss, has amassed an Instagram following of more than 23,000 after he was featured on Morbid: A True Crime Podcast.

getting rich off of Thumbz, though he does net her some cash. Instagram paid Hotchkiss $75 in January because of her cat’s large following.

A single post on Thumbz’s Instagram can receive hundreds or even thousands of likes. Hotchkiss said she has just more than 2,000 followers on her own account, but she said she is not at all envious of Thumbz’s popularity; rather, she is enjoying it.

She even said she has goals for him. She wants Thumbz to reach 25,000 followers by the end of March.

The life of Thumbz

He often sits on his cat tower and stares out the window, looking for squirrels in the trees.

“He’s an old man now,” Hotchkiss said.

That’s fine with her. The cat has, after all, lived with Hotchkiss in New Mexico, Eugene, California, Hawaii and now Pendleton.

Thumbz weighs 15.7 pounds. She said he might be a Maine coon or an American bob tail; she is not certain which, if either. And while he is not a lap cat, Hotchkiss said, he will climb up on a person’s chest to be petted, but only for people he likes.

Thumbz is not entirely an indoor cat. She takes Thumbz out on a leash. She said he likes to roll around in dirt.

Thumbz also does not meow, Hotchkiss said. Instead, he makes a trill. And while he is particularly about his cat food, he will eat cream cheese off of Hotchkiss’s fingers.

She also said she likes to think about the jobs of which he might be capable. Perhaps, she said, laughing, he could be a rodeo clown at Round-Up or even find a company ready for the cat to give it “two thumbs up.”

School exclusion day for Morrow County is Wednesday, April 20

Hermiston Herald

The Morrow County School District was among a handful of Oregon districts to push back the annual school exclusion day.

The Oregon Health Authority in a press release reported the deadline for parents to provide vaccine records of students was Feb. 16, except for seven counties, including Morrow County.

“We’re trying to get to 100% on this,” Dirk Dirksen, Morrow County School District superintendent, said. By setting back the day, he said, he feels families have more time to get necessary vaccinations.

OHA allowed local public health authorities to set alternate dates this year by which parents must provide vaccine records for their children or be excluded from school. County health departments are asking families to update the record at school or day care when the child gets their shots.

Under state law, all children in public and private schools, preschools, Head Start and certified child care facilities must have up-to-date documentation on their required immunizations or have an exemption.

The COVID-19 vaccine is not currently required for children.

Children must have immunizations for the following diseases, or an exemption, to be in compliance with state school immunization laws: diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles, mumps, rubella, hepatitis B, hepatitis A, varicella and Hib.

If a child’s school and childcare vaccination records are not up to date on their county’s exclusion day date, the child will be sent home.
