

Mixed media exhibit on display at Tamástslíkt Cultural Institute

Go! staff

MISSION — Tamástslíkt Cultural Institute has opened its first exhibit since 2019.

Curated by Sheehan Gallery at Whitman College, "You Are Here" is, according to a press release, "a mixed-media exhibit created to support a college course on Indigenous aesthetics and explores themes related to place and identity. Many of the artists exhibited have personal connections to indigeneity and draw from personal and collective histories and memories."

The exhibit is open through May 14.

The show includes painted portraits by Ric Gendron, a member of the Arrow Lakes Band of the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation; lithographs that merge historical photos with traditional quilt patterns by Ap-sáalooke artist Wendy Red Star; dramatic landscapes by James Lavadour, a member of the Walla Walla Tribe; and fiber art pieces constructed from wool blankets and embroidered by Marie Watt, a member of the Seneca nation will be on display.

ABOUT TAMÁSTSLÍKT CULTURAL INSTITUTE

Tamástslíkt is owned and operated by the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation. All paid admission is good for two consecutive days. A Blue Star museum, Tamástslíkt is one of the many museums across the nation that offers free admission to families of active duty servicemen and women year-round. Free regular admission is extended to members of the CTUIR and Inwai Circle of Friends as well as to card-carrying members of partner institutions: Oregon Historical Society and Fort Walla Walla Museum.

Free family passes are available at local Eastern Oregon libraries. AAA members receive $1 off admission.

In addition to the museum and interpretive center, Tamástslíkt operates a museum store, café, and offers meeting room rentals. The Museum Store and permanent exhibits are open from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday-Saturday. Kinship Café is open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Tuesday-Saturday.

Tamástslíkt is located at 47106 Wildhorse Blvd. at the
