

For Lung Troubles

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral certainly cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption. And it certainly strengthens weak throats and weak lungs. There can be no mistake about this. You know it is true. And your own doctor will say so.

"My little boy had a terrible cough. I tried everything I could hear of but in vain until I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first night he was better, and he steadily improved until he was perfectly well."—Mrs. B. J. STEWART, Alton, Ill.

The Search for Paul Jones' Body.

Back of the coming home of the body of John Paul Jones, to rest in the crypt of our new Naval Academy, lies the story of General Horace Porter's six years' quest, impeded by many obstacles, successful at last, with overwhelming evidence in favor of the identification of the body. The full story of this research General Porter tells for the first time in the October Century.

"Upon assuming charge of our embassy in Paris and finding myself among the old landmarks which are still honored there as recalling the many historic incidents in the sojourn of Paul Jones in that brilliant capital," says General Porter, "I felt a deep sense of humiliation as an American citizen in realizing that our first and most fascinating naval hero had been lying for more than a century in an unknown and forgotten grave and that no successful attempt had ever been made to recover his remains and give them appropriate sepulture in the land upon whose history he had shed so much lustre."

Among the illustrations of the article is one showing the face of the recovered body, compared with the Hudson bust.

Leap-Year Episode.

Fred—Miss Elderleigh has proposed three times within the past six weeks, but I can't make up my mind to accept her.

Joe—Has she got money?

Fred—About $50,000, I understand. Joe—Well, you are taking desperate chances, old man. Suppose she should stop proposing?

CONSUMPTION

"Don't Hustle the Boss."

Teddy (aged eight) in the morning had received instructions from his father "never to hurry his elders"—once he had asked for a thing he should rest patiently, waiting their convenience to get around to it.

Teddy in the evening climbed into bed without saying his usual prayers. The intimate connection between these two events transpired a moment later, when Teddy's mamma asked why the prayers had been neglected.

"I've asked God for three nights to make Teddy a good boy, an' if I ain't it's 'cause God's been kep' busy som'er's else. Pop says: 'Don't ever hurry the boss,' an' I guess I ain't a-goin' to hurry God. He'll get round to me jes' as soon as he has time."

Laughs at $5 Each.

"Insulting behavior" is a very elastic charge in Australia. It may cover anything from pitch-and-toss to manslaughter. Its latest application comes from Bendigo.

In that golden city, where the late Marquis of Salisbury tried his luck as a digger, the authorities of a Methodist Church, decided to suppress juvenile giggling. They introduced a policeman in plain clothes, and he detected a couple of small boys laughing during the evening service.

The boys were brought into court on a charge of "insulting behavior" and fined $5 each.—London Chronicle.

For forty year's PISO'S Cure for Consumption has cured coughs and colds. At druggists. Price 26 cents.

Friendly Criticism.

"Texas," remarked Jaggeby, "is a great place for snakes. I once saw a green and yellow snake down there 77 feet long and as big round as a whisky barrel."

"Well, I don't doubt it," rejoined Waggeby, "but it's doughnuts to fudge you saw the whisky barrel before you saw the snake."

Somewhat Different.

"What is the price of that antique chair?" asked the lady shopper.

"Nineteen dollars, madam," replied the new clerk.

"Aren't you mistaken?" queried the bargain hunter. "It certainly can't be worth that much."

"Madam," said the conscientious young man, "it is probably worth about $2.50, but you asked the price."

HUNTER OF PARASITES.

His Mission Is to Find Natural Cures for Insect Pests.

He had just arrived in London from Brazil, and was off the next day to the antipodes. I found him in the office of the agent general for western Australia. He was carrying a little box containing a few commonplace looking beetles. Yet to find those beetles he had traveled 15,000 miles and searched far and wide, says the London Mail.

For the bronzed and hardy traveler follows the least known profession on earth, that of the parasite hunter. For years he has been travelling, literally from China to Peru, in his search for insects that will aid the farmer in his war against pests.

"I am a tracker down of the natural cures for the insect pests that are doing damage costing hundreds of millions every year," said Mr. Compere, in answer to my questions. "Every country has its different plagues. How do these pests come? Here London affords you the simplest illustration. Millions of insects are carried into England every day in the merchandise that arrives from abroad, some in the sacks of eastern cargoes, some in the dried foliage around tropical products.

"At any time one of these strange insects, carried here in such fashion, might find that the English climate suited it, and that one of your native products (possible wheat) supplied it with a suitable food. If there were nothing to counteract it, it would in a few years spread all over England, breeding in great numbers several times a year. Before many had quite realized what was the matter, your wheat crop would be ruined.

"For some years my work has taken me to every land. Now I am in Spain, now in China, now in the heart of France, now in Central America. My method is this: When seeking an antidote I first find the native home of the pest I wish to attack. Then I go there get into the country, and examine. I watch the same pest there (where it is probably doing scarcely any damage), and I am almost sure to find that at some stage of its life another insect attacks and destroys it. Then I have found what I wanted—my parasite—and I take it away with me and breed it to fight the pest.

"Every pest has its parasite, and the right way to fight pests is through their parasites. Western Australia is setting the way here in practical fruit culture and farming, and others will benefit from its work."

ADORNING HOME PREMISES.

Progress of Organized Effort in That Direction.

The recent bulletin of the American Civic Association tells how organized and individual effort is being directed in many cities to the adorning of the home premises, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The growth of the park systems has been taken as a hint by private persons that they can embellish their own yards as well and far more easily than the public authorities can lay out parks and boulevards, and that the sum total of this private effort will add largely to the health, happiness and convenience of the whole population. The school gardens in various cities have given this movement a new impetus. No home is so humble that it cannot at least have flower pots in its windows, and no back yard so small that it cannot support a few flowers. In the adornment of walls and fences, too, the possibilities of beauty contained in the humblest vines are beginning to be recognized.

It has long and justly been a reproach to Americans that they are so devoted to the material and practical that ideas have been neglected. It is beyond dispute that as respects artistic adornment the average American home or town is inferior to the foreign home or town. This has been notoriously the case in the country, where the American pioneer chopped or burned every tree in sight of his homestead, then had to set out shade trees for the benefit of his grandchildren.

It is only lately that American cities and private citizens have embarked upon intelligent and comprehensive enterprises of city and home adornment. Europe is old and staid; America young and restless, with a large migratory population which never stops long enough in one place to have a home. In this respect things are changing, and what is to be made a home only for a few years can in a short time, under the favorable circumstances of living here, be made as attractive artistically as many European homes which have been such for generations. This country owes to its population of recent European origin a large share of the credit for the newly awakened interest in natural beauty effects.

Recalling a Famous Remark.

GOOD BLOOD TELLS ITS OWN STORY

And tells it eloquently in the bright eye, the supple, elastic movement, the smooth, soft skin, glowing with health, a body sound and well, an active brain, good appetite and digestion, refreshing sleep, energy to perform the duties and capacity to enjoy the pleasures of life. The blood is the most vital part of the body; every organ, muscle, tissue, nerve, sinew and bone is dependent on it for nourishment and strength, and as it circulates through the system, pure and strong, it furnishes to these different parts all the healthful qualities nature intended. When, from any cause, the blood becomes impure or diseased, it tells a different story, quite as forceful in its way. Itching, burning skin diseases, muddy, sallow complexions, disfiguring sores, boils, carbuncles, etc., show the presence, in the blood, of some foreign matter or poison. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Contagious Blood Poison and Scrofula, are effects of a deeply poisoned blood circulation. These may either be inherited or acquired, but the seat of trouble is the same—the blood. S. S. S., a purely vegetable blood remedy, cleanses and purifies the circulation and makes it strong and clean. Under its purifying and tonic effects all poisons and impurities are expelled from the blood, the general health is built up, all disfiguring eruptions and blemishes disappear, the skin becomes soft and smooth and robust health blesses life. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison and all diseases of the blood are cured by S. S. S.
