CHAFF FROM THE STRAW STACK

The milk of human kindness gets sour if it stands too long.
Some men have no idea of humor until they catch the itch.
Dog days are better than cat nights with mosquitoes thrown in.
The man who eats cloves is never free from the breath of suspicion.
Something is sure to be up when a gossip says: "There's no talking."
A man with only a penny in his pocket possesses a round sum of money.
Misfortune most always come in pairs, especially if the other fellow holds three of a kind
If boys had the running of the world some of us grown ups would have to do some humping.
The more you puff a cigar the smaller it becomes. Some men in Oregon are built like cigars.
The question was asked us the other day "Why do old maids wear knit gloves?" "Because they have no—kids."
Jealousy among business men of a town has the same effect on trade as a scorching hot wind on green vegetables—it withers and dries it up. If you haven't a good word for your competitor, for your own good and the good of the town, dont say anything bad of him.
Two urchins appeared at the post-office window and the larger of the two was handed a large square box on which was a label "Tapering Waist Effect." "Let's see it," said the smaller urchin, as he made a grab for the box. "Nit," said the other, "you don't get a look in on this, its mamma's and she don't want any body to know she's got it.
The author of the following must have dipped into the wrong bottle while writing: "Although yesterday today was tomorrow, and tomorrow today will be yesterday, nevertheless yesterday tomorrow will be today after tomorrow, because today would be tomorrow yesterday, and tomorrow will be today tomorrow or would have been the day after tomorrow yesterday.
At a church sociable in the country the other night there wasn't seats enough to accommodate the crowd, so a couple of boards were brought in and placed on two chairs. A dudish little fellow sat down on the boards with his best girl and began teetering. Observing the situation a bright little woman in the crowd propounded this one: "Why is a man on a teeter board like a man who has jumped his board bill. They all gave it up and then she said, "Why that's easy, he's got a little behind on board." This concluded the evening entertainment.
An indulgent father wishing to please his youngest hopeful took him Portland the other day and they stopped at one of the large hotels for the night. The youngest was undressed and put to bed and the father went down into the lobby to talk business. Then there came a jingling of bells indicating that the push button in the young man's room, who had been left quiet in the bed, had been worked to the limit. There was a rush of feet as the bell boy scurried to the room, only to be met at the door by a diminutive but indignant youth who said severely: "Man, I want you to send some one I can say my prayers to, and send them quick. I want to go to sleep."
