SCHOOL NOTES

The last month of school is well under headway and the end of this month will tell whether the pupils work for this year will count or not. The time has come in this country when only thorough work counts and the conditions are more exacting every year. I wonder how many parents realize this. It seems that many have not thought of this yet and are allowing their children to form careless habits, simply by not keeping at their school work. Your teachers can work as hard as they please to help your child when he is at school, but when you allow him to stay at home a part of the time this work is made many times harder and it is impossible for the pupil to accomplish satisfactory work under such circumstances.

The field meet for the boys will take place Friday afternoon. The boys would be glad to meet teams from Heppner or lone some time before school closes.

Preparations for the recital Friday evening are about completed. We think you will not be disappointed if you attend. A small charge of fifteen cents has been decided upon as the admission fee. All we are figuring on making is enough to pay expenses but if there is any surplus it will probably be divided between the school and the churches. The recital will commence at eight o'clock in Artisan hall.

The Wheatfield prints the news.

THE HEN THAT WORKS.

The hen is naturally industrious, and she should not be compelled to remain idle by being cooped up in a dark, filthy house, with leaky roof and bare floor. She should be encouraged to work, and a place should be provided for her. If it is impossible to have a separate scratching shed, arrange dropping boards under the roosts and cover the floor with straw and throw grain in this. Any kind of small grain is good—the best being oats, millet and barley. Corn is an excellent winter food, but should be given only in the afternoon. During the severe weather it is better if warmed or partially browned in the stove: Drinking water should also be slightly warmed—just enough to take off the chill. The hen that works will lay, and just as sure as day follows night the one that does not work will not lay.

SENTENCE SERMONS

By Henry F. Cope.

The demons are all afraid of a happy man.

Yesterday's cloud is today's refreshing.

The master's back shows the servant's true face.

Faultless people are usually forceless.

No man ought to complain of the pain that cures pride.

Tomorrow's shadow is always heavier than today's duty.

If your religion interferes with your business the chances are it needs to.

This is always a good world to those who are doing good work.

The best arguments for religion will always be in lives rather than in libraries.

It is the sacrifice we make for ideals that determines the value of the real.

The length of life we cannot determine, but its strength and value we may.

Sin may be often covered, but it is never concealed.

You may well afford to forego the fortune that makes you forget the good.

Rheumatism Makes Life Miserable.

A happy home is the most valuable possession that is within the reach of mankind, but you cannot enjoy its comforts if you are suffering from rheumatism. You throw aside business cares when you enter home and you can be relieved from those rheumatic pains also by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application will give you relief and its continued use for a short time will bring about a permanent cure. For sale by W. P. McMillan.

NOTICE.

All persons who had mares bred by Sir Robert, and have not paid the fees, are requested to deposit the fees with the Bank of Lexington as soon as convenient. 25-tf
