the remains to their last resting place. in the Lexington cemetery. The Wheatfield extends sympathy to the bereaved father, brothers and sisters.

We have been accused of saying that the picture show, alleging to show the destruction of San Francisco, was not up to standard, because it was given in the Congregational church, and that we were working against that church. We will state publicly that anyone making such an allegation is stating a falsehood, as we have no desire to knock any institution in our town. We have in the past and will in the future do all in our power to assist in upbuilding Lexington in every way possible regardless of those who delight in prevaricating and attempting to destroy every enterprise that does not meet their personal views.

I have just received, from Edward B. Grossman & Co., of Chicago, a choice line of spring samples. Ladies' and Misses' Suits, Silk Shirt Waist Suits, Wash Suits, Wash Skirts, Waists, Petticoats.
